The Ladies of Boston
Chinese Hookworm
Free Speech—Good Joke
Good-bye, Ten Billions

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1920.

Why do Boston women, young and old, trot along the sidewalks with such peaceful expressions, while women in New York, Chicago and other cities look as though they had just heard the Ladybug's message, "fly away home, your house is on fire, your children will burn." John Bogart, publisher of the Boston American, explains with "Boston is civilized, and civilization means peace." That answer is not enough. You may see peaceful faces on the Ganges' banks, where Englishmen rule Asiatics, but that is not civilization.

Since the people have not brains enough to do such things for themselves, it is well that Mr. Rockefeller is able to make a hundred millions or so a year, and do the work for them.

Thus far the high birth rate of China has been offset by the dreadful death rate and to some extent by drowning girl babies.

What would be the effect on the world if Rockefeller science and American industrial methods made it possible to cut down the death rate and raise and employ the Chinese girl babies? What would the world do with a thousand million and then two thousand million more Chinese? Would the whites be crowded out? Or would they have to substitute decimation for preservation?

Mrs. Elizabeth G. Evans of Brookline, Mass., was arrested yesterday at Bridgeport, Ct., and the Reverend John Haynes Holmes at Mt. Vernon, N. Y., for addressing open air Socialist meetings. If they had addressed Democratic, Republican, labor union, Christian Science, Red Cross, Salvation Army, Protestant or Catholic meetings they would not have been arrested. What is the exact meaning of the constitutional provision concerning freedom of speech?

And, more important question, what do men usually do to make an impression when free speech is forbidden them? Why sit on the safety valve?

To "deflate," as the Reserve Bank puts it, is one thing. To encourage usury and urge banks to profiteer at the expense of business and agriculture is another thing.

Seven, eight, nine and ten per cent. for money certainly "sweeten a loan," as the bankers put it. But discouraging and barraging borrowers on whose initiative the nation depends for prosperity, and thus bringing on a panic, will not sweeten anything.

Mr. Paish, eminent British financial authority, says this nation should cancel Europe's debt of ten thousand millions of dollars, including five thousand millions owed us by England. He says that President Wilson intended "to forgive the entente nations their debts to America." How many other American things did Mr. Wilson plan to give Europe in his generous mood?

One thing is sure, whether we forgive Europe her debt or allow her to continue to forget it, the result will be the same. The money will not be paid. It was made up of money that you invested in bonds that have dropped so far in value.

Bidding a fond farewell to the ten thousand millions the country should at least keep out of the war League of Nations that could call on us, every little while, for ten billions more.

Canadian yarn drops in price from $3.25 to $1.85, the biggest drop thus far in any manufactured article. The harder the women worked at their war knitting, the faster the profiteers put up the price. Unfortunately they have the money put away and will enjoy it. The father who got a fair living at best, will feel the force of the drop in the value of wool. That is how it works.

All young men will talk about the baseball series. Call their attention to the fact that preliminary work was done for Cleveland by a player that had been "twice sold," as baseball says, by teams that now have not a player as good.

The stone that was rejected by the builder becomes the keystone of the arch, even in baseball. If you have quality in you preliminary failure by the condemnation of others won't stop you.

In the fiscal year ending last June internal taxes alone collected by the United States Treasury amounted to five and a half billion dollars, more than $50 for every man, woman and child in the country. We are paying as we go, and we can do it if we have only OUR OWN wars and our own decisions to pay for.

Can you imagine how many times five thousand millions would be spent in a year by the patriotic "gangs" that spent more than a thousand millions "on airships" for the Democratic administration without producing a single flying machine that would fly?

If you have or ever expect to have ten cents, pray that the war League of Nations be not saddled on the United States.

TECH MAN SHOT IN QUARREL

Cambridge Youth Charged With Wounding Student Arrested After Chase

Following a disturbance between four Cambridge youths and several Tech students in front of No. 428 Charles River road, Cambridge, Joseph Nowell, a student, was shot in the right shoulder with a twenty-two-calibre revolver. Chester Baumister, aged seventeen ,of Rockwell street, Cambridge, is held as Nowell's assailant.

The building in front of which the shooting occurred is occupied by the Six Club, an organization of Tech students. It is claimed by the students that the Cambridge boys were firing stones at the building and Nowell accompanied by other students left their studies to remonstrate with the disturbers.

It is charged the Baumeister youth drew a revolver, fired a shot, wounding Nowell, and discharged two more bullets as he fled from the scene.

The wounded student was removed to the office of a Back Bay physician. He is not seriously hurt.

The defendant was captured, following a chase, in which Tech students joined, by Sergeant Bradley of Division 2. He is charged with assault with a dangerous weapon and carrying a loaded revolver. The gun and cartridges are in the possession of the police.

Baumister appeared in Cambridge Municipal Court today and the case was continued for one week. He was held in $500 bail.

Fined for Stealing Shoes

William Hayes, colored, of East First street, South Boston, was fined $10 in the South Boston court today. He was charged with stealing a pair of shoes from the H. & J. Shoe Company on K street.

Soviet Only Solvent State, Says Lenine

Special Correspondence of the International News Service.
(Copyright, 1920, by the International News Service.)

Moscow, by Wireless to Berlin, Oct. 13 (Night).—Nicolai Lenine today gave an exclusive interview to the International News Service. He received the correspondent in a large plain office in the former law courts building, now the headquarters of the council of peoples commissars.

There was an absence of all guards and all ceremony. Lenine was dressed like a conventional man of affairs. He was extremely cordial and his conversation was animated. He was curious, asking innumerable shrewd questions which showed an extraordinary knowledge of American politics.

On Lenine's desk was a copy of an American newspaper describing the Farmer-Labor party convention.

"This is a most important and interesting development," said Lenine, glancing at the newspaper. "I suppose the reactionaries call these fellows Bolsheviks."

Lenine laughed and added: "What are these Forty-Eighters? Aren't they American Fabians?"

Lenine then turned to the American policy towards Russia.

"I told Americans, Colonel Robbins

HURLS OUT BODY OF SLAIN WIFE

Springfield Man Cuts Woman's Throat After Prolonged Quarrel

Springfield, Oct. 14.—John T. Fisher of No. 257 Sharon street today cut the throat of his wife, Lillian, and then hurled her body from the window of their fourth-story apartment to the sidewalk below.

Fisher was arrested. The woman is believed to have been dead when thrown from the window. The couple had been quarrelling for several weeks, according to the police. Both are colored.

$1,500,000 BLAZE IN CHICAGO BELIEVED SET

Chicago, Oct. 14.—Fire that swept through Chicago Junction Railway freight houses and yards caused a property loss of $1,500,000, according to an estimate by Arthur Seyferlich, assistant fire chief. The authorities are searching for several men seen walking through the yards a short time before the fire broke out in half a dozen different places. They believe "outlaw" switchmen were responsible.

BRITAIN FACES COAL TIE-UP

General Strike on Saturday Expected Unless Government Yields

By International News Service.

London, Oct. 14.—A general strike throughout the British coal fields appeared inevitable today.

A. B. Plett, one of the delegates of the South Wales coal miners, declared this afternoon a strike was certain. Work may stop in the coal fields Saturday unless government intervention succeeds in staying the strike.

The men are demanding a wage increase of two shillings per shift and a reduction in the price of coal to the domestic consumers. If the strike begins, the Federation of Miners expects to have the support of the railway men and the dock workers.

The Federation of Miners announced the following official result in the general referendum on the question of a general strike and acceptance or rejection of the proposed settlement with the colliery owners:

For the proposed settlement, 181,428.

The ballots against the proposed settlement were automatically in favor of a general strike.

The executive committee of the Federation of Miners sent a letter to the Premier making official announcement that it had decided to permit a strike.

MOSCOW MOVES TO CRUSH ANTI-REDS IN SIBERIA

London, Oct. 14.—The Moscow Soviet is taking vigorous measures to crush the anti-Bolshevik coup in Siberia, said a dispatch from Helsingfors today. With the Russo-Polish armistice signed, the Soviet will be able to return some of the Red troops, who were removed from Siberia to fight the Poles. More than 1,000 arrests have been made by Soviet troops at Omsk, Irkutsk and elsewhere. Most of the prisoners were former officers and soldiers in the army of Admiral Kolchak.

COLLAPSES AT SIGHT OF COAT

Mrs. Kenyon Weeps as Dr. Tetlow's Garment Is Shown in Evidence

Norwich, Ct., Oct. 14.—The battle for the life of Mrs. Mabel Kenyon of Westerly, Ct., on trial for the murder of Dr. Herbert Tetlow, began here today when the defence introduced a deposition by Mrs. Anita Gaudette, who occupied the next apartment to that in which the physician was killed.

This evidence tended to show that a silent struggle took place between Mrs. Kenyon and Dr. Tetlow immediately prior to the firing of the fatal shot, the deposition stating that no other noises were heard.

Mrs. Kenyon broke down for the first time since the beginning of the trial, when shortly before the prosecution rested Medical Examiner Gildersleeve, recalled for cross-examination, repeated previous testimony to the effect that there were no powder marks around the bullet hole in Dr. Tetlow's coat.

Mrs. Kenyon wept silently, the tears flowing down under her hands which she had placed over her face during the blood-stained garments was handed to the medical examiner.

Her thirteen-year-old son, Francis, who has been the woman's constant attendant in court since the trial,

BROWN PLEADS 'BRAINSTORM'

Insanity Experts Battle at Trial for Slaying of Wife's Sweetheart

Casper N. H., Oct. 14.—A spectacular battle of "brainstorm" experts began today with the opening of the defence in the case of George E. Brown of Sandwich, on trial for his life for the murder of Richard C. Dunn.

"This man's mind snapped when he surprised his wife in Dunn's arms," said the attorney.

"There was never a clearer case of insanity. We make our defence the insanity plea."

Attorney Rogers' brief, dramatic outline of the defence surprised judge, jury and spectators. It had been expected up to the last moment that Brown would make his fight for life on the "unwritten law" despite the court's warning that such a defence would not be recognized.

RECALLS THAW TRIAL.

The famous Thaw trial was recalled as the sanity experts mustered for the fray, and there were indications that the case would from now on hinge entirely on the testimony of the alienists.

MOTHER OF TWO TRIES SUICIDE

Reading Woman Cuts Throat in Fit of Despondency Over Children

Mrs. Ethel G. Guild, thirty-three years old, mother of two children, attempted suicide today by slashing her throat with a carving knife at her home, No. 295 Main street, Reading.

A few years ago Mr. and Mrs. Guild lost a young child who was scalded to death. They have a little daughter who attends school, and a five months old baby. The mother was worried over the latter, fearing that it was not growing as rapidly as it should.

BRITAIN FEARS NEW CRISIS

State of Rebellion May Be Proclaimed in Ireland by Lloyd George Government

London, Oct. 14.—Terence MacSwiney, Sinn Fein lord mayor of Cork, spent a restless night in the infirmary of Brixton Jail, and his condition today was described as worse. This was the sixty-third day of MacSwiney's hunger strike.

MacSwiney is progressively weaker," declared Arthur O'Brien, "Sinn Fein ambassador to London," after visiting the Lord Mayor in jail.

London, Oct. 14.—British officials charge the Irish Republicans with secret war preparations. An explosion in County Wexford, on Wednesday, in which seven men were instantly killed, was said by British officials to have been caused by experiments with bombs in a secret Sinn Fein arsenal.

Violence is increasing in Ireland and there was every indication that the Irish situation would confront the British government with greater menace than ever before when Parliament convenes next Tuesday and considerations of the home rule bill is renewed in the House of Commons.

Recruits to the Royal Irish Constabulary are arriving in Dublin at the rate of 300 a week, according to information from the Irish capital.

Premier Lloyd George has made it plain that the cabinet intends to stand upon the main principles of the present home rule bill, although it may consider amendments relating to such matters as finance. The Cabinet will refuse to modify the bill so as to

BROWN SAW WIFE IN DUNN'S ARMS, THEN SHOT, IS CLAIM

ACCUSED MAN TO DENY HE INTENDED TO KILL

of his case moved even Mrs. Geneva Dunn, widow of the victim, to tears.

He described the meeting taking Brown's agents of suspicion as to his wife's friendship with Dunn, the [illegible] sitting down of his sense of moral values and the final burst of insane fury, which ended his reason from [illegible] he announced the insanity plea.

Rogers, that since the Fall of 1917 Brown had worried continuously, until finally he suffered a form of insanity. We will show that almost continuously during this period he worried over the relationship which he suspected existed between his wife and the man he is now charged with killing.

His suspicions had been aroused a number of times, but mainly at dances where he and his wife were frequent attendants. He noticed that Dunn paid too much attention to her and that they were continually dancing together. As a result of this discovery he was forced to discontinue this single pleasure in his otherwise prosaic life.

"There were other things, too, which aroused his suspicions and to his mind there came the thought that during his absence from home Dunn was at his house. While he never really had anything that confirmed these suspicions, there existed a feeling which soon brought on impairment of his mental faculties."

SUSPICIONS GREW STRONGER.

Last Fall he was taken severely ill. He suffered constantly from headaches. Pains bothered him and his suspicions grew stronger and stronger as time elapsed. His employer will tell you that he was not the same man following his illness, that he was prior to it. He was not always able to work and though the conditions which prevailed on the evening of February 7 were no worse than those which had existed on hundreds of other mornings during his life, it was unable to go to his work.

He returned to his home on that morning and the suspicions which had long existed were fully confirmed. From a point well down the hill he saw Dunn coming down the hill from the direction of the Hoag place.

SAW DUNN RUN.

"Then he saw Dunn suddenly turn and run. A few seconds later he saw Dunn coming on again and this time turn in the path near the apple tree, which has been shown you. Brown decided to approach his house stealth that he might better observe the happenings. And keeping the Cartland house between him and Dunn he made his way through the fields to the wall near his house.

"And then, with the wall between them, he continued his approach. That he might not be seen he went first to the rear of his house and then around it to the front door, where he entered, hoping to go through it and out all the while concealed from Dunn of Mrs. Brown. In the house and on the lower floor of it as we will show you, Brown found himself, he saw his rifle.

"A sudden impulse, something that he had not thought of before, came into his mind. It was to take the rifle with him and seek out the couple. It had been his intention to give Dunn nothing more than a sound trouncing. He took the rifle with him, left by the rear door, started across the orchard and into the path which leads to the much talked of apple tree.

DUNN EMBRACED WIFE.

"As he approached the road the great something he had long sought for was brought home to him forcibly. There in the path he saw his wife locked in the arms of Dunn. That embrace caused sudden overpowering passion. Brown will tell you that he never had an intention of killing Dunn.

"He will tell you that as he approached Dunn he started to run suddenly there came over him an insane irresistible impulse to shoot and while running he fired once and twice more. That is all he remembers of the happenings. He turned, ran up to his wife, and with her returned to the house.

"He will tell you that he does not recall having hit her. He will admit, however, that he did hit her, for he remembers having seen blood trickling down her face.

INTENDED TO COMMIT SUICIDE.

"He worried throughout the day and late that night he got up with the intention of killing himself. He intended to commit suicide, but was dissuaded from doing so by his fourteen-year-old son, Carroll. That boy will corroborate this bit of testimony.

"By means of experts we will show you that every word of this contention is the truth. We will show you that the conditions which had existed for a long years prior to that February morning had brought about a form of insanity which resulted in this crime.

"Experts will tell you that the night Brown told his story to County Detective Britton he was not in full possession of his faculties. This can be established clearly. Further we will show that after his commitment to the jail he was sane.

BROWN TO TELL STORY.

"Brown will tell you the whole story of his life. There will be no phase of it omitted. He is anxious that you should know everything there is to be known and all that he knows about this shooting will be told you.

"Mrs. Brown will also tell you her story. She will relate to you the incidents which led up to this crime. There will be nothing concealed. This, gentlemen, is an unfortunate case, but it is one in which the truth must prevail. We feel absolutely certain that once you are in possession of these facts nothing can deter you from doing your plain duty to both the State and this respondent at the bar."

The State, in its presentation of the case, devoted but one day to the offering of testimony. It is now felt absolutely certain that a rebuttal of some length will be brought in.

DOCTOR VISITED MRS. KENYON

opened a week ago Wednesday, was absent today, his place being taken by his father, Alvin Kenyon.

Immediately after the conclusion of Medical Examiner Gildersleeve's testimony, he having been called as an expert, the prosecution rested and the defense began the presentation of its evidence.

DEFENCE STARTS.

The deposition of Mrs. Gaudette was first offered, in which the witness stated that her apartment adjoined that of Dr. Tetlow on the second floor of the building in Westerly, which is a part of Stonington.

The deposition stated that while Mrs. Gaudette had heard some sounds from the doctor's apartments prior to the shooting, she had failed to recognize them. She was positive that she had heard no voices and no evidences of a struggle. The deposition further declared that no one came up the stairs at this time.

The witness said that she first heard one shot, followed after a short interval by two in rapid succession. She then went to the door of the doctor's apartment, finding it open about twelve inches. A man's legs were stretched out on the floor, visible through the partly open door.

Mrs. Gaudette, according to her deposition, did not see Mrs. Kenyon, but heard a woman's voice say: "The doctor is dying—get Dr. Mayo." This command, the witness said, was directed to Mrs. Grace E. Thurston.

Dr. Tetlow's clandestine visits to Mrs. Kenyon at her home were of daily occurrence and extended over a period of two years prior to the shooting last June, which resulted in his death and the woman being held for murder, according to witnesses.

Daylight hours when Mrs. Kenyon's husband would be at work was the time the physician, whose means made it unnecessary for him to practice, chose to pay his attentions to her, they said. Some days he was at the Kenyon house in the morning, on other days in the afternoon, it was disclosed.

The doctor was always punctual in taking his departure ten or fifteen minutes before twelve o'clock noon, when the husband was due home for lunch, and again allowed himself about the same time in leave taking before five o'clock, it was declared.

TELLS OF LAST VISIT.

Mrs. Edna J. Brown, who occupies the house next door to the Kenyons on Williams street in the westerly section of Stonington, was one of the neighbors who told of Dr. Tetlow's visits to Mrs. Kenyon. They were on an average of at least one a day, she said.

The alleged affair between the doctor and Mrs. Kenyon reached a climax on the eleventh day of last June, Mrs. Grace M. Douglas, who at that time shared the house with Mrs. Brown, said that while sitting in her living room that morning she saw Mrs. Kenyon pass along the sidewalk and continue up the street until she reached and entered the apartment house where Dr. Tetlow lived.

While still sitting by the window, Mrs. Douglas testified she saw Mrs. Kenyon come out of the apartment house and run down the walk towards her home. The house occupied by the Douglas and Brown families is between that of the Kenyons and Dr. Tetlow's apartment.

MRS. KENYON HATLESS.

Mrs. Kenyon returned to her own home but remained only a few minutes, according to the witness. Mrs. Kenyon then came out and ran back to where the doctor lived. She did not see Mrs. Kenyon again, Mrs. Douglas said, until the latter was being returned to her home by the two physicians who had been called in to attend Dr. Tetlow after the fatal shooting.

Mrs. Kenyon was hatless, and wore a long blue cape on her trips past the house that day, Mrs. Douglas said. Neither this witness nor Mrs. Brown, who said she also saw Mrs. Kenyon running towards Dr. Tetlow's apartment could state, in response to attorney's questions, whether Mrs. Kenyon had something concealed beneath the cape.

Several of the witnesses called by the prosecution, most of them women of the neighborhood, described seeing Dr. Tetlow and Mrs. Kenyon together on various occasions.

Search for Liquor on Italian Liner

By International News Service.

New York, Oct. 14.—Twelve armed United States coast guards and eighty armed customs inspectors were ordered aboard the Italian liner, Dante Alighieri, here today to search for contraband liquor and drugs. Members of the crew had openly defied customs agents and threatened to throw them off the ship if they attempted to search it.

The Italian liner arrived here last Saturday. At that time officials received a tip that several thousand dollars' worth of liquor was aboard. A quantity of liquor was found on the dock, on the pier, where it had been concealed.

among them, in 1915, that it was to the interest of the United States to be friendly with Soviet Russia," said he.

"As long ago as that I pointed out the desirability of commercial relations, both from our viewpoint and the viewpoint of Americans. We offered concessions to American capital. American business men now arriving in Moscow agree with us.

"Outside of all political questions, the simple fact remains that America needs our raw materials and we need American goods. American capitalists know perfectly well what they want. They see coming a struggle with the Japanese for dominion of the Pacific. They realize that America must soon challenge England for supremacy in the world's markets.

'IS A GREAT POWER."

"After three years of blockade and countless revolutions, military intervention and the Polish war, Soviet Russia is stronger than ever.

"America will gain nothing for herself by President Wilson's refusal to deal with us, because our government does not suit his tastes.

"Leaders of the Republican party seem to realize that the period of isolation from European affairs is past. It is evident that the country cannot play such a part without utilizing the immense unexploited reservoir of raw materials offered by Soviet Russia. And, in turn, Soviet Russia can purchase unlimited quantities of manufactured goods.

ONLY SOLVENT COUNTRY.

After the great war Soviet Russia remains the only solvent European country. Mr. Colby (the American Secretary of State) tells the Italian government we will not keep agreements. But Mr. Colby to my mind should weigh his words more cautiously. He will not be able to cite a single instance nor a single case of our failing to carry out our obligations.

"And what about William Bullitt? Didn't he bring out obligations of the American government? Didn't John Maynard Keynes, an authority on the economic consequences of the war, and others who were not Bolshevik, give an estimate of Mr. Wilson's obligations?"

Mr. Bullitt was a member of the American delegation to the peace conference. He went to Russia and made an investigation w[illegible] results that were favorable to the Soviet regime. Later Mr. Bullitt said [illegible] President Wilson had refused to accept his report.

John M. Keynes, who was a member of the British delegation to the peace conference, afterwards wrote a book criticising the peace treaty for what he termed its harshness. He expressed fears of a complete European collapse because of the economic and financial terms imposed by the treaty.

extend to Ireland dominion rule, such as that enjoyed by Canada and Australia.

The Sinn Fein has accepted Premier Lloyd George's speech as a declaration of war, and reports from Dublin during the last forty-eight hours show an alarming increase in the number of battles and raids. It is reported that the government may declare a state of rebellion existing in Ireland unless a definite move is made for peace within the next four days.

Serious rioting is reported from Dublin, Londonderry, County Cork and elsewhere. Many persons have been wounded at Dublin in a series of clashes between soldiers and civilians in the streets. Soldiers fired upon the crowds and charged with fixed bayonets.

Belfast was quiet at latest reports, but it was feared that disorders might spread there from Londonderry. Both the Orangemen and the Republicans at Belfast have been nervous and restive since their last battle.

VICTIM OF MONTREAL GUNMAN

Doris Ladd Volunteers for Transfusion Operation on J. T. Carey of Lawrence

Montreal, Oct. 14.—If J. J. Carey of Lawrence, Mass., recovers from the pistol wound inflicted by a gunman he will owe his life to Doris Ladd, pretty twenty-year-old stenographer who submitted to the transfusion of a pint of her blood to the veins of the rapidly weakening youth.

When surgeons at the Montreal General Hospital announced that Carey would die unless his blood supply was increased, Miss Ladd eagerly volunteered to submit to the transfusion, although she had never seen the Massachusetts man before. Her interest in Carey, she says, was prompted by humanitarian motives.

Following the operation Carey showed considerable improvement and hospital physicians announce that he has more than an even chance of recovery.

Carey, who is twenty-four years old, was shot by a gunman while walking on Cadieux street. His assailant fled in a high powered car in company with three other men.

The youth lost considerable blood and was in a coma when examined by surgeons at the hospital. When the gravity of his condition was made known Miss Baird was the first to come forward. The operation left her slightly weak. Her first words when the transfusion had been completed were to learn Carey's chances of recovery.

Aunt Rushes to Carey's Bedside at Montreal

Lawrence, Oct. 14.—Miss Fannie Carey at No. 349 Haverhill street, this city, an aunt of John J. Carey who was shot and severely wounded on a street in Montreal, left here for that city last night on receipt of the following a telegram received from the Rev. Fr. Potter, chaplain of the General Hospital, Montreal, verifying facts in the shooting.

Relatives of the young man had postcards from him recently. He left for Canada three weeks ago and told his relatives here that he was to be accompanied by two companions, prior to leaving here he was employed by Thom Brothers. Carey served overseas with the coast artillery. He has one brother and two sisters who live here. He has lived apart from his wife for months.

Searles Charges 8 Year Plot in Will Case

PEACE TREATIES TOO HARSH, SAYS NITTI

Manchester, England, Oct. 14—Part of an article by Former Premier Nitti of Italy, criticizing the peace treaties, has been banished from Italy by the Guardian. The article, which was written for the Italian newspaper Mattino, was designed as an appeal to American opinion.

"No one can claim to defend the treaties imposed upon the vanquished by the Victors," wrote ex-Premier Nitti. "Since our victory we have too often used language such as we had reproached our enemies for using. Does anyone speak of humanity? Nobody doubts that the vanquished should pay a certain indemnity, but can they pay the absurd indemnities we claim to be justified in imposing upon them? No alone some territorial modifications were necessary, but those we have imposed were not necessary."

ACCUSED BROKERS FIGHT EXTRADITION

DORCHESTER BOY BRUISED BY AUTO

Six-year-old Francis Kelley of No. 48 Crescent avenue received slight bruises to the body when he was struck by an automobile owned and operated by William Fletcher of No. 1621 Dorchester avenue, as he stepped from behind a wagon while crossing Dorchester avenue into the path of Fletcher's machine. After treatment at the Carney Hospital he was sent home.

100,000 STRIKE IN CAN-MAKING PLANTS

Washington, Oct. 14.—In the neighborhood of 100,000 men affiliated with the Steel Workers' Union are out, and employed by the American Can Company are now on strike, it was revealed by Union officials today. The strike was called, officials say, when the company refused to grant a uniform wage of $1 per hour to its skilled mechanics.

Miss Mildred Wanamaker, victim of a brutal assault near her home in Wakefield, is still on the danger list at the Melrose Hospital. It was stated today that her condition had improved very slightly during the night. She is still unable to talk enough to tell of her experience. The hospital authorities stated today that she will not be able to leave the institution for at least four weeks.

The case against Frank Ramey, charged with murderous attack on Miss Mildred M. Wanamaker of Wakefield, was continued to October 28 by Judge Bruce in Malden Court today.

Attorney P. B. Kiernan, Ramey's counsel, agreed to the continuance following a statement by Chief of Police James J. Pollard of Wakefield.

Chief Pollard said Miss Wanamaker was still in a critical condition in Melrose Hospital, and would not leave the institution for at least a week. He said it would be out of time to try to proceed before her mind cleared.

It is considered likely today that the Middlesex County Jury would take up the case next week and remove it from the jurisdiction of the lower court.

In anticipation of today's court schedule, Assistant District Attorney Harvey had visited Melrose Hospital and interviewed the physicians. He also tried to sound out the girl in the presence of Dr. Fay, but soon discovered that the patient was in no condition mentally or physically to undergo a stenographic interrogation for legal purposes.

Harvey had brought along State Detective Silas Smith, Inspector Barrett of the Cambridge police and Chief James J. Pollard and Patrolman Prescott of the Wakefield police. A young woman stenographer from the district attorney's office accompanied the party in a touring car, but did not leave the automobile. After they had hour had elapsed Harvey and the others came out of the hospital. Harvey said:

"The girl was in no shape to give a statement of any kind. She couldn't even recall where she worked. She drops into a coma every little while. She recognizes faces and voices of relatives and can converse in a limited, hazy fashion, but her memory is a blank so far as the attack and the past is concerned. We felt that it would not be safe to attempt to question her. Her life is more valuable than this case and besides we have ample evidence to proceed, and we are going to trial with or without dispatch."

Inspector Barrett took some of the girl's clothing back to Cambridge. The girl's mother and sweetheart visited her this morning, it was officials. They thought she showed slight improvement.

SANDWICH MAN KILLED BY UNCLE'S AUTOMOBILE

Sandwich, Oct. 14.—John M. Freeman was struck by an automobile driven by Joseph Freeman of Wareham, his uncle, and received injuries that caused his death. Mr. Freeman was about to leave here for his home in Wareham, and while backing out of the yard the car threw him against another car, crushing him badly. He leaves a wife and five children.

A plot of eight years' standing to grab his uncle's fortune was charged against Victor Albert Searles by Attorney Charles F. Choate, Jr., senior counsel for the executors of the $30,000,000 estate of Edward F. Searles, the deceased Methuen eccentric, in the Salem Probate Court.

The present fight to break the will at the hearing on the motion by Sherman Whipple, counsel for the Searles' nephew, to have the contest sent to the Superior Court for jury trial, is nothing less than an attempt to force the legatees to settle out of court so that Victor can raise money to pay his debts, Attorney Choate declared.

RESUME HEARING FRIDAY.

Choate's argument was interrupted by adjournment and the hearing was scheduled to resume tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

Arraignment of Victor Searles as a plotter for the family fortune followed Attorney Whipple's sensational declaration that Arthur T. Walker of New York, who was left the bulk of the $30,000,000 estate, was aware of alleged weird relations between the aged millionaire and Angelo Ellison, New York hotel bell boy.

Victor Searles began his alleged plot eight years ago, declared Attorney Choate, when he engaged counsel to prepare for a will contest. The history of the relations between Mr. Searles and his nephew is a history of begging letters in which the nephew asked his uncle to pay for vile and vicious living, he declared on the records of the court what Victor's life was."

Choate declared that Victor was a "source of annoyance and irritation" to his uncle and that the $250,000 legacy accurately represented his feelings for the nephew.

The existence of at least three other wills in which Victor received less than he did in the last, said Choate, was clear evidence that the millionaire did not plan to make his nephew his chief heir.

Choate declared that Walker, the chief beneficiary, instead of being "an obscure clerk," as was charged, had been managing Searles' big interests for several years with sufficient fidelity. That Walker plotted to secure the fortune was sheer rhetoric on the part of counsel, said Choate, and nothing had been offered to prove it.

Likewise, he asserted, nothing had been brought forward to show that Searles was of unsound mind. On the contrary, his successful administration of his big affairs, his taste in art and his judgment in charities connoted the reverse.

WHIPPLE CHARGES PLOT.

After Searles died, last August 6, at nearly eighty years old, Attorney Whipple asserted Ellison mysteriously disappeared but he expressed the belief that he knew his present whereabouts.

The hearing was not without the usual tiff between opposing counsel. Choate asked that Messrs Whipple, Judge Harry C. Dutton of Providence, John W. Cummings, William B. Scharton, Michael L. Sullivan and John R. McVey, all counsel for the contestants, to produce their certificates of power of attorney.

Whipple quickly flared back that there were no grounds for such a demand. He said he regarded it as tantamount to discredit himself and associates. He denied that he or Cummings had been given power of attorney by anyone connected with the case and said he understood that neither Sullivan, McVey or Scharton had such power.

FIGHT ON REED WILL OPENS

Sister-in-Law Charges Dorchester Man, Now Dead, Influenced Hotel Owner

Before Judge Quinn and a jury in the fifth session of the Superior Court, a contest on the will of William Henry Reed, who resided at No. 47 Fulton street, Neponset, and died on November 17, 1919, was started. Many years ago Mr. Reed was the proprietor of Reed's Hotel at Squantum, and accumulated a fortune of about $90,000.

Mrs. Francena Robinson of South Braintree, a sister of Mrs. Reed, and William A. Reed of No. 37 Norway street, submariner in the Chaplain School, are the contestants. They claim that when, on October 23, 1918, Mr. Reed made his will, he was not of sound mind, and that he was unduly influenced by James H. Stark of Savin Hill Dorchester, who died in August, 1919.

Mrs. Robinson was left by her brother the income on a trust fund of $15,000. Her daughter, Miriam G. Robinson, wife of Edward N. Dingley, Jr., is to have the income of a trust fund of $25,000, and Mrs. Robinson's son, Harry Robinson, was given only one dollar by his uncle. William A. Reed, the son of the testator's brother, Warren, was left $1,000 by the will.

The residue of Mr. Reed's estate was divided into eight parts. One-eighth each was given to Jane Evelyn Stark, Elizabeth I. Stark and Mildred M. Stark, now Kidd, daughters of James H. Stark. One-eighth was left to Nelson E. Dingley, Edward N. Dingley and Madeline Dingley, children of Mr. Reed's niece, Miriam G. Dingley; Parker Reed, son of the testator's nephew, William A. Reed, and Edith Hanlon.

2 CONGRESSMEN IN RUM RING

Revelations of Whiskey Scandal Result in Nation-Wide Probe

Washington, Oct. 14.—As a result of the amazing whiskey ring revelations in Chicago, prohibition officials are making investigations in practically every city in the United States, it was announced today.

Particular effort is being made to ascertain whether officials or employes in Washington have aided members of the ring to obtain permits for whiskey by illegal means.

According to reports that have reached Prohibition Commissioner Kramer, at least two members of Congress and other officials are involved in the Chicago revelations.

Official believers that the investigation will disclose activities of the ring throughout Canada and Mexico as well as in the United States.

For months past prohibition officials have been baffled by the shipment of large quantities of liquor from Canada. On one recent occasion an entire section of a sleeping car was found filled with whiskey sent in charge of a porter to a designated room in the New York State from this point the liquor would have found its way to New York City.

Operations of a gang of rumrunners between Canada and the United States is said to account for the large amount of liquor now offered for sale in New York.

A few days ago one investigator found a saloon in the theatrical district which specialized in the Scotch and Irish whiskey at $1 per drink and $12 to $15 per quart. The usual price for liquor sold over the bar in New York was found to be 50 cents. Officials of the Internal Revenue Department today denied that a woman member of the Washington office had been found guilty of accepting bribes to grant withdrawal permits.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—Federal Judge K. M. Landis will draw a special Grand Jury to investigate transactions in whiskey here involving millions of dollars, according to District Attorney Clyne. Clyne asked the judge to open the investigation after he had told the court he had received evidence involving high officials and prominent politicians.

TOWNS MAY BE FLOODED TO UTILIZE WATER

Ware, Oct. 14—Tapping the Ware and Swift rivers to increase the water supply of eastern cities would result in the flooding of fields and growing crops, it was declared by the state Commissioner of Public Works at a hearing held here today. Farmers in all sections of the valley were present and thought the proposed plan would be disastrous.

Emilie A. Burkhardt, Daughter of Brewer, Wills Bulk of Estate to Family Housekeeper

The will of Emilie A. Burkhardt, daughter of the millionaire brewer, G. F. Burkhardt, filed in the Norfolk Court at Dedham, contains a bequest of $5 to Baroness Lucie Rotund von Scholley, her sister. The will of the deceased disposes of an estate valued at more than $100,000. Several other sisters were also left $5 under the provisions of the will.

The Baroness gained considerable publicity during the war when she was accused of pro-German activities. Miss Hyde, a companion of the deceased at the Burkhardt homestead for many years, was bequested $50,000. Miss Mary Burkhardt, a New York bookkeeper, was left $25,000.

SEEKS BROTHER BEFORE RETURNING TO MEXICO

Charles Harvey, now of New York, who says he is to return to Mexico where he possesses property, is anxious to locate his brother Vincent, whom he believes to be living in Boston. His mother, he says, died shortly after the birth of Vincent, in 1871 or 1872. Vincent was placed in a charitable institution in Harrisburg, and later transferred to either Johnstown or Lancaster, Pa., where he was adopted by Charles G. Murphy of Centralia, Pa.

He remained with him until about twenty years of age, and left for Philadelphia, and then came to Boston, still using the name of Murphy. This was the last heard of him. He asks his brother to write him, address general delivery, New York City.

HARDING ENTERS KENTUCKY

Presidential Nominee Pleased Over Tennessee Outlook—Confers With Senator New

By International News Service.

Senator Harding left Tennessee with the assurances of State Republican leaders that he has a good fighting chance of carrying the State this year. These assurances, however, are characterized by Tennessee Democrats, many of whom attended Senator Harding's meeting here last night, as absurd. They declare that the normal Democratic majority of from 15,000 to 25,000 will be doubled this year with the advent of the woman vote.

The Harding special pulled out of Chattanooga this morning after having over to the railroad yards at midnight. Six speeches were scheduled for the Republican candidate en route to Louisville, where the Senator tonight will address the principal rally of the day. The first scheduled stop was at Oakdale and after that Danielsville, Somerset, Harrisburg, Lawrenceburg and Shelbyville.

Senator Harding's party was joined here by Senator Harry S. New of Indiana, chairman of the Republican speakers' bureau, and Joseph R. Keating, national committeeman from Montana. The Senator will cross the Ohio River tomorrow morning and address speeches in Indiana and will speak in Indianapolis tomorrow night.

Senator New conferred with Senator Harding about an Eastern trip which has been hanging in the balance for several days.

It has been pretty definitely decided, Senator New said, that Harding will not speak in New York city, although it is now planned to fill an engagement in Buffalo on October 21 and in Rochester on October 20.

BURIAL SERVICES FOR MRS. GERTRUDE DONOVAN

The funeral of Mrs. Gertrude Donovan, member of the Winthrop branch of the Special Aid Society for America's Preparedness, was held from her late residence, No. 137 Main street, Winthrop, this morning. A mass of requiem was held in the Church of St. John the Evangelist and burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, Malden.

ELOPERS HEADED FOR BOSTON

St. Johnsbury, Vt., Oct. 14—Mrs. David R. Corbett, washwoman for several society people of this city, who disappeared to an automobile with Frank Dunn, leaving her husband and one daughter behind, is on her way to Boston with Dunn, according to Miss Lillian LaFrance, who left town with them and has returned.

GRANGERS PLAN BIG SESSION

Twenty Thousand Expected Here Next Month—Highest Degree for 10,000

Fully 20,000 Patrons of Husbandry are expected to attend the National Grange session to be held in Boston from November 10 to 19. A feature of the session will be the conferring of the seventh or fifteenth degree of the organization on approximately 10,000 men and women members during the second week of the gathering.

Massachusetts is expected to furnish 2,500 of the candidates for the degree, while others will come from elsewhere in the New England States. Some 5,000 are expected from the Western States of the country. The agricultural States of the West will be represented by a number of delegates estimated in Boston Derby-fine years ago. There were only nine in the class.

BIG EXHIBITION.

During the session there will be a mammoth agricultural show at the Mechanics Building. Huntington avenue. Fruits, flowers and other products of the farm and garden will be displayed. There will be no prizes and no charge for admission. It will be open to the public from 9 o'clock every day, November 17. This exhibition is intended to boom New England agriculture and to emphasize the importance that the order of the Patrons of Husbandry occupies in its development.

Maine is expected to send a wonderful exhibition of potatoes. Vermont will send a splendid display of maple sugar products, fruits, flowers, dairy products, rye and other products of the farm. Each of the States of New England will be allowed in such a way as to be a revelation to city people, as well as farmers from the far West.

HISTORIC TRIPS.

The local committees have prepared a number of historic trips for the delegates. Harold D. Hooker of East Bridgewater will be in charge of the trip to Plymouth under the auspices of the Pomona Grangers, assisted by H. T. Moore of Hayndam Center. The entertainment committee of the Massachusetts Pomona and New England clubhouse given by the Mayflower Pomona Grange. The trip will be made on November 15.

There will be a trip to Concord and Lexington on Sunday, November 14, under the auspices of the Middlesex Concord and then visit Lexington. A New England-wide dinner will be served at the Hall of the Central Pomona Grange at Lexington.

PRESBYTERIAN LEADERS WILL CONFER IN BOSTON

Presbyterian leaders all over New England will hold an important conference in Boston at the Pilgrim Presbyterian Church, Monday, Oct. 18.

The social service side of Christianity will be presented by Dr. John Matthews, chairman of the Federated Churches Commission investigating the steel strike.

Metropolitan lectures on the Near East by B. Carter Milliken will be a feature of the conference. Dr. and Mrs. William H. Crothers, Rev. David H. Cramer of New York, Mrs. H. C. Londenbush, Rev. Nevin D. Bartholomew and Rev. J. H. Ballard.

FAIL TO FIND OWNER OF SEIZED WET GOODS

Portland, Me., Oct. 14—One of the biggest liquor seizures in this city for some time was made on a vacant house in Bradbury court by Deputy Sheriffs Emerson H. Doughty and Frank A. Stevens, who found the liquor on the second floor of the building the deputies found two gallon cans of alcohol, 40 half pints of the fluid, two gallon cans of rye whiskey, 12 quarts of whiskey, 192 pints of whiskey and beer, seven 200 and 300 pint and half-pint kegs of beer. The owner of the property or stuff had not been discovered today.

SAYS EUROPE ADMITS AMERICA WON THE WAR

Brockton, Oct. 14.—Judge Warren A. Reed, who has been in Europe for a time from a tour of European battle fields states that Germany's defeat is gradually becoming convincing proof that won the world war. That is the opinion expressed by Judge Reed to tourist while going through France and in England. "I found," said Judge Reed, "that Englishmen are willing to admit that America did the trick."

SENATOR UNDERWOOD IN BOSTON TONIGHT

Senator Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, Democratic leader in the Senate, will speak at the Mechanics City Club tonight at 7:30 on the issues of the campaign, and will later address a meeting in the Boston Garden banquet on the Common. He will be met at the train by Mayor Peters, with whom he served in the lower branch of Congress some years ago.

SOVIET ENVOYS ON WAY TO U. S. HELD IN PARIS

Paris, Oct. 14—Leon Palmer and Samuel Foulke, alleged Soviet envoys, on their way to the United States from the United States were arrested in Paris today, it was learned by the Chicago Express. They carried with them Bolshevik documents and a roll of bills, each and securities.

MUSICAL THIEVES LOOT ADAMS STORE OF RECORDS

Adams, Oct. 14.—Musically inclined thieves made a good haul at the local store of M. Schwartz & Co., Summer street, when they made away with 125 phonograph records and a roll of linoleum. The police believe the thieves were in an automobile and that they have left town.

U. S. Machinists Move to End All War

Washington, Oct. 14.—American workers in the arsenals, munitions plants and navy yards are preparing to make what is declared to be the first practical move to end war.

The International Machinists' Association, one of the most powerful labor organizations in the United States, with a membership of 350,000 and control over all the organized workers in the munitions and allied industries of munitions and naval vessels, will take initial steps within a month to call a conference of metal workers of the world for concerted action on a program to bring about the abolition of warfare.

Mr. Johnston, it is pointed out, is the most radical departure from the ranks of organized labor in America in years, and assumes added importance because it comes from the United largest union in the American Federation of Labor.

Next to the miners it is regarded as the most powerful body affiliated with the Federation. Its membership rules in effect, a repudiation of Samuel Gompers' stand on European labor.

In making his announcement Johnston said:

"The question of future wars rests in the hands of the skilled mechanics and other organized workers after all. They are the men who make the death-dealing devices of war. If they could refuse making these devices war would cease.

We are striving for peace and we know of no better way to bring the peace of the world than to get together with all the metal workers in the world and establish a policy and a definite policy dealing with the manufacture of munitions.

"Labor has been confronted with machinery created and fashioned by the hands of mechanics. Statesmen and draftsmen in all countries, who in the light of recent events must bear the responsibility for future wars."

Johnston said his organization would issue invitations to the metal workers of Europe to participate in the conference. Samuel Gompers, head of the Federation of Labor would serve in connection with this international federation on account of its Bolshevist tendencies.

TENANTS OPEN RENT BATTLE

Speakers Warn Dorchester Audience That Further Advances May Be Expected

Plans for fighting any attempt of Dorchester landlords to raise rents were completed at a meeting of the Tenants' League of Dorchester and Mattapan at No. 1006 Blue Hill avenue last night. Speakers at the meeting said that the increases in property valuation would undoubtedly be followed by advances in rentals in the near future unless organized opposition is made.

It was resolved that the association would address itself to the problem of supplying legal assistance to members threatened with rent increases or eviction.

Samuel Roggenburg, special attorney general of the Federation League of Greater New York, declared that the rich and State are profiting from the war and that they must protect themselves. He said Governor Coolidge and Mayor Peters were unduly negligent.

Mr. Roggenburg urged that the tenants organize and that they demand a reduction in the price of coal, land in Greater Boston and loan money to citizens for the purpose of building homes.

Louis Hertman presided. He ordered Mr. Roggenburg's arguments printed and distributed to the public.

One of the organizers of the Tenants' League there, spoke as follows: "Here we are paying two and two-half mills dealers of Boston. She said investigation of New York City showed that dealers were buying milk for 6½ cents and selling it in the cities for 14 cents.

Other speakers were Mrs. Hale Brickman and P. Levine.

Follow Coolidge South! Read the American

Governor Calvin Coolidge left Boston today on his heralded "swing 'round the circle." This "thin, red man," whose fame as the champion of "law and order" made him overnight a national figure, goes as the Republican candidate for Vice-President of the United States at the head of a battery of famous orators to break through the iron ring of the "Solid South."

He has never known defeat. What fate lies before him? What will he say about the League? Will he throw the infamous "lynch law" into the face of his Southern auditors?

How will the quiet, reserved "Cal," with his New England drawl, be received by the folks of the Cracker Country? "'Lo Cal.'" "'Lo Lige.'"

Coolidge faces the big task of his political career. Read all the details.

Governor Coolidge will be accompanied on the trip by the American's political editor, John T. Lambert. He will give New England the best pen picture of the Governor's invasion of the South. Follow Coolidge with Lambert and the American.

ATROCITIES IN ERIN DETAILED

Father Cotter, K. C. Editor, Describes Horrors He Saw; Flays British

New York, Oct. 14.—Atrocities surpassing in horror any committed by Goth, Hun or Turk, or those inflicted by the Spaniards in Cuba under General Weyler, are being carried on by the British government in Ireland, according to Rev. Father James H. Cotter, D. D., just returned from a visit to Ireland.

Father Cotter is a graduate of Manhattan College, New York City, and member of the Board of Editors of the Columbiad, official publication of the Knights of Columbus.

Father Cotter was passing through New York on his way to Ironton, O., where he is a rector of St. Lawrence's Church. He spent nine weeks in Ireland. He declared:

"I personally saw many British atrocities, and was fresh on the scene after other British attacks, and talked to the people. I made it a point to talk specially to Protestants.

WITNESS OF ONE MURDER.

"One murder was committed before my very eyes. At Galway I had to take shelter for several hours while British Black-and-Tan soldiers fired volley after volley in the terror-stricken town.

"The enforcement of the curfew, which the Black and Tans use to shoot any Irishman found outdoors after 10 o'clock, is a cloak for dastardly deeds of every description. The Black and Tans invade houses where there are women and commit outrages, knowing there are none or few men abroad to interfere or respond to calls for help. I personally talked to women who had been shamefully outraged under circumstances showing the savage degeneracy of the Black and Tans.

"I visited Brixton Prison and spent three hours with the Misses Anna and Mary MacSwiney, sisters of Lord Mayor MacSwiney. The prison was surrounded by soldiers on horse and afoot, as if a storm and assault were threatened.

"Goth, Hun and Turk, massed together at their execrable work, pales before England's diabolism in Ireland. England plots to destroy the Sinn Fein government of Ireland by frightfulness. In Balbriggan the Black and Tans bayonetted two inoffensive men to death, stabbing only at their faces and necks, and thus prolonging their agony.

"In Bantry the police entered the home of a poor old couple, the Crowleys, and shot to death their hunchback son, firing first through his two hands joined in prayer for mercy and then five shots into his chest.

"In a motor lorry armed with military, going from Middleton to Cork Jail, an officer sent a shot through the hadies of two brothers, strapped back to back, killing one prisoner and wounding the other, whom he would have killed only his soldiers prevented. In Ballylynon the forces of the Crown threw a man's body into the flames of his burning home, fired by his murderers.

TERRORISM IN GALWAY.

"I was in Galway at the beginning of its horrors. The Railway Hotel, where I was a guest, opens on the railway station, where a Black and Tan flourished his revolver without any provocation whatever and shot an innocent bystander, Mulvey, in my presence. A volunteer jumped on his back and tried to wrest the weapon from him. The murderer tried to shoot him, and while struggling wounded two others. He was finally shot by a civilian. An English officer declared on the spot that it was the only thing to do with the ruffian.

"Then followed the reprisals. About two hours later 250 soldiers and police halted at the front door of the hotel and volley after volley for the next hour terrified the townspeople. I lay on the floor near the window while the firing was going on. The British police and soldiery went to Broderick's, locked a woman of sixty-five years, mother of children, in a little room, poured petrol in her parlor and fired the house. Luckily she escaped from a rear window.

MRS. BRYCE PROTESTS.

"I found that Protestants and Catholics alike are united in their firmness for Irish freedom. Mrs. Anna Bryce, a Protestant, sister-in-law of our former Ambassador, and with whom I had a long personal interview, told me that her garage had been burned down because she allowed her neighbors to dance in it. She also wrote me a letter in which she denounced English tyranny in Ireland in strong terms. Mr. Biggs, a Bantry merchant, had his store burned, because he inserted in one of his newspaper advertisements a courteous denial of English propaganda designed to create ill-will between Protestants and Catholics. Mr. Biggs is a Protestant."

The other officers of the senior class are: Vice-president, Herbert Bailey of Hitchburg; secretary, Ruth Toher of Winthrop; treasurer, William Duval of Newton Upper Falls.

HARDING'S EASTERN TRIP CALLED OFF

New York, Oct. 14. — Without explanation of any sort, it was announced here 12:at Senator Harding's New York visit is off. He was scheduled to make an address in Madison Square Garden on October 23.

Announcement to this effect was made by Colonel Thomas W. Miller, head of the eastern division of the Speakers' Bureau. The Newark trip on October 22, and the New Haven speech for the day after, were both called off.

NO "LEAGUE" DAY FOR WEST VIRGINIA

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 14.—Governor Cornwell has refused the requests of the League of Nations Day committee to issue an official proclamation designating October 24 as "League of Nations Day" throughout the State.

"Such a proclamation by me in this State," said Governor Cornwell, "would be construed by the opponents of the league as political. It would engender bad feeling and certainly would be inadvisable here."

Vermont Autoist Fined $300

Montpelier, Vt., Oct. 14.—The heaviest fine ever imposed on an automobilist for driving a machine while under the influence of liquor was levied on Delbert Martin of Calais, in the Municipal Court here. Martin was assessed $300.

Real Lemon Pie

At its best—Almost ready-made

Now Lemon Pie of the finest sort comes almost ready-made.

It is made by experts for you. All the ingredients come in the package, so you simply add water.

The sugar, the egg yolk, the powdered milk, the corn starch and tapioca all come ready-mixed. The lemon essence—derived from lemon peel—comes in liquid form in a bottle.

An expert cook may make an equal pie, but it takes much time and trouble.

That is unnecessary now. In Jiffy-Pie a few cents buys it almost ready-made.

It is made by the makers of Jiffy-Jell—the real-fruit dessert with the flavors in bottles. Jiffy-Pie is just as perfect as is Jiffy-Jell.

We ask every home to try it at our cost. Learn what delicious pie it makes, how easily and quickly. Then the queen of pies will be ever at your call.

Save your own time when we are making such matchless desserts for you.

Don't wonder about it. Go get a pie and let us pay the grocer. Then you who love good lemon pie will serve it many times as often.

FREE

To Users of Jiffy-Jell

We will buy the first package of Jiffy-Pie if you are a Jiffy-Jell user. Present this coupon to your grocer and buy two packages of Jiffy-Jell.

Then your grocer will give you free one package of Jiffy-Pie. And we will pay him for it. Do this now, for this offer is temporary. We buy only one package for each home.

5 PLANES BOMB U. S. S. INDIANA

Discarded Battleship Closes Career as Aircraft Target in Lynnhaven Bay

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 14.—Gaunt and deserted, the U. S. S. Indiana, fighting ship of a by-gone era, steamed slowly up Lynnhaven bay to submit to bombardment by a group of five naval seaplanes. She was propelled by wireless aboard the U. S. S. Ohio, trailing five miles in her wake. Her speed was ten miles an hour.

The planes dipped and swooped and spat down on the old gray ship their bombs. Twenty-five bombs were thrown; only five took effect. Those five were enough to mangle her decks beyond repair, twist and split her funnels and created chaos on the immaculate ship-shape decks.

The other twenty bombs ploughed up the bay and entertained passing craft with geysers, which lasted a moment.

The Indiana is not saved. Today another hundred bombs will be dropped. When the shadows grow long on Lynnhaven Bay the Indiana will be resting on the bottom.

The bombardment was ordered for a twofold purpose: To demonstrate the power of the radio to control the movements of ships, and to provide target practice for the United States navy sea-planes.

Plan "Battle" at Sea With U. S. S. Iowa as the Target

Washington, Oct. 14.—A spectacular battle at sea with the battleship Iowa making desperate efforts to escape the guns of a pursuing fleet is planned by the Navy Department, it was learned today. The Iowa will be steered by radio from the battleship Ohio.

As the battle progresses and shots fall close to the Iowa, her course will be changed so that she will receive the fire from a less destructive angle. If the skill of the gunners is greater than that of the radio directors the battleship will be entirely destroyed.

NOTED SOCIETY WOMAN DEAD

Mrs. Ogden Mills Passes Away in Paris After Visit to Her Daughter

New York, Oct. 14.—Mrs. Ogden Mills, leader in both New York and Newport society, is dead. Word reached her son, Ogden L. Mills, at his office on Broad street that his mother had died of heart affection in her Paris residence, No. 73 Rue de Varenne. Mr. Mills was with his wife at the time of her death.

Mrs. Mills arrived in Paris several months ago, en route from England, where she had stopped over to visit her daughter, Lady Granard.

Mrs. Mills before her marriage was Miss Ruth T. Livingston. The couple have had three children, a son, Ogden L. Mills and twin daughters, Beatrice, who is now Lady Granard, and Gladys, who is now Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps.

Mrs. Mills is president and director of the Tribune Association, and vice-president and director of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company.

MOVIE ACTRESSES AND THEIR HAIR

Did it ever occur to you that every movie actress you have seen has lovely hair, while the most popular count their curls as their chief beauty? In fact, many are leading ladies just because of their attractive locks. Inquiry among them discloses the fact that they bring out all the natural beauty of their hair by carefully shampooing, not with any soap or makeshift, but with a simple mixture by putting a teaspoonful of cantrex (which they get from the druggist) in a cup of hot water and applying this instead of soap. This full cup of shampoo liquid is enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. After its use, the hair dries rapidly with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. The hair is so fluffy that it looks much heavier than it is, its luster and softness are delightful.—Advertisement.

SUSPECTS TO BE FREED IN "BILLY" DANSEY CASE

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 14.—Because of insufficiency of evidence, Charles S. White and Mrs. Edith L. Jones are expected to be released from custody on the advice of County Prosecutor Edward Gaskill, and the now-famous "Billy" Dansey murder case, will join the list of unsolved mysteries, Gaskill announced he would recommend the release of the two prisoners. White was charged with the murder of the boy and Mrs. Jones was held as an alleged accessory.

Filene's

Dress and grow thin

FOR LARGE WOMEN the pleasantest truth in the world should be that size is relative. With proper corseting, any large woman can imitate the lines of any slender woman.

STRAIGHT LINES are the ones to achieve nowadays. Never mind how much the waistline may measure—get it low enough, and get the hip-lines, the back-line and the front-line as straight as a flapper! A Filene corset fitting will give a large woman these fashionable lines.

Then the brassieres. By all means do not fail to complete the good figure molding work the corset largely achieves. Brassieres are indispensable to all women, but especially to those who would dress and grow thin.

Attention to little things may appear to take pounds off a large woman. As simple a thing as a hair net, for instance, will do it by giving her a cleaner cut outline.

Do you know a well chosen veil will almost disguise many a double chin? That a hat which is short in back is usually a large woman's best friend.

FILENE'S is a large woman's paradise. One entirely separate shop, in charge of a large woman, is devoted entirely to larger women's dresses; another to larger women's coats.

The CORSET first

Because it is the foundation of the figure. If you wear a size above 30, let our expert staff fit you to one of these corsets, modelled for larger women. Grace D, $3.75; Grace No. 500, $4; Grace No. 178, $7; Nemo No. 511, $7.25; Bon Ton No. 881, $9. Third floor.

Larger women's DRESSES

Plenty of them in the Inexpensive Dress Shop, where nothing is higher; $22.50. Navy blue serge dresses, revers and satin vests, $20. Lower waistline serge tunics, embroidered waists, $22.50. Satin dresses, pointed overtunics, $22.50. Sixth floor.

Larger women's BLOUSES

All with larger armholes, as well as larger bust measure.

Crepe de Chine blouses, many with square necks, $8.75. Silk braid trimmed, $12.50; Georgette with revers and "vest" inset of real filet lace, $15. Fifth floor.

Larger women's COATS

An entire separate shop of them on the fifth floor. Some high spots: Brown silk-lined velours coats, $45; Bolivia coats, silk lined, $65. Bolivia wraps, $75. Others up to $185.

Larger women's HATS

Plenty of the type of hats that show the neck all around and are close to the head. $7.50 and more. Sixth floor.

Larger women's HOSIERY

Stockings woven larger all through —you will not have to stretch them to fit. Pure dye silk stockings, black and white that were $3.50 up to recently you now can buy for $3. Colors, $2.75. Other extra size black silk stockings $2.25.

Larger women's coat dresses, $35

Larger women's HOUSE DRESSES

Straight line, Billie Burke style, always the favorite—no gathers at waistline. Striped Billie Burke extra size percale house dresses, $2.75; chambray Billie Burke extra sizes, $3.50. Machine-Made Dress Shop—sixth floor.

Larger women's SKIRTS

Plaids can be worn successfully by larger women, if they are quiet plaids. Women's Skirt Shop sells hundreds of black and white, sand and black, navy and forest green plaids, in sizes 34 to 40 waist. $15 to $29.50. Fifth floor. Plenty of striped skirts also.

Larger women's SUITS

BROWN, the premier color of the season, is worn successfully by larger women. Brown (and navy blue) velours suits, sizes 44 to 52, hand-tailored and silk lined, $65. Larger women's oxford gray tailor-made suits, $55. Others to $100. Fifth floor.

Larger women's APRONS

Easy-to-get into styles, buttoned in back, covering one from head to toe. Made of our own striped shirting, $2.50; or in plain and striped percale, $2.50. Third floor.

Larger women's PETTICOATS

Long-wearing Milanese jersey petticoats that have no bulk, with taffeta flounces. Every color to match or contrast with suits. $6.75. Others to $16.50. Third floor.

Larger women's UNDERMUSLINS

A separate section set apart for them on the third floor, containing Filene Values like these: Nightgowns, $1.65 to $3; envelope chemises, tailored and lacey, $1.85 and more; crepe and batiste bloomers, reinforced, $1.50.

WOULD DIVORCE FUSSY HUSBAND

Roslindale Woman Charges Boiled Dinner Was Thrown Through Window

Charging her husband with throwing a boiled dinner out of the window and demanding beefsteak instead, Mrs. Jessie R. Simonds of Roslindale asks for a separation on the ground of cruel and abusive treatment. Judge Keating, who heard the testimony of Mrs. Simonds and witnesses in the Suffolk County divorce court, took the matter under advisement.

The Simonds were married in Roxbury on March 18, 1914, and lived at No. 88 Zeigler street, Roxbury. The whereabouts of the husband, Elmer H. Simonds, are unknown to his wife. She testified that he struck her in the face with his fist, hit her with his shoes and threw dishes at her. She says she last time she heard from him was when he was soldiering at Camp Devens, Ayer.

CUT HER WRISTS.

"When we lived at the Zeigler street house the landlady told us to pack up and get out when the rent wasn't paid," testified Mrs. Simonds. "He cut my wrists with a safety razor. I have two scars as a result of his abuse. I couldn't live with him because he beat me."

Michael H. Hanley, an employe of the Boston Belt Company, charged his wife, Barbara, with marrying a colored man named McWilliams. He said he went to the city registrar's office and found a record of marriage of his wife, as "Barbara Larkin," to McWilliams. Michael Maller told the court he went to the home of Mrs. Williams with a sheriff and was present when the divorce nisi papers were served on Mrs. Hanley there.

HUSBAND GETS DECREE.

John F. Curley of South Boston was married to his wife, Eva L., at Northeast Harbor, Me., July 4, 1914, and went to live with her in Roxbury. Each had been married before. Curley alleged that his wife deserted him September 18, 1916, and that he has since lived with his sister, Mrs. Catherine McGrath, in South Boston. He was given a decree nisi.

Mrs. Catherine M. Hanscom told the court her husband, Maurice P., said he "could do as he pleased" without any advice from her. They were married in Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1908, and he left her in April, 1917. She hasn't seen him since. She charged desertion. The case was taken under advisement.

STREET DEPARTMENT VETERAN IS DEAD

Patrick Ronan, for thirty years an employe of the Boston street department, died suddenly at his home, No. 5-31 Ashmont street, Dorchester. He was born in Cork, Ireland. His wife and five sons survive him. They are William, David, John F., George T. and Edward J. Mr. Ronan was a charter member of St. Ann's Holy Name Society and a member of Dorchester Court, M. C. O. F.

Catholic Alumnae Thank American

Editor Boston American:

We wish to express to you on behalf of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae and its Boston Chapter the sincere appreciation which we feel for the courtesy and publicity which we have received from the American through the attention of your representatives during our recent convention.

At a meeting of the Federation, the following resolution was unanimously carried:

"RESOLVED, that the members of the Fourth Biennial Convention of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae record their sincere appreciation of the courteous, efficient and generous publicity given to the activities of the convention by the Press of the City of Boston."

Very truly yours,

FRANCE TRADING WITH SOVIETS

Secret Relations With Russia Revealed by Arrival of Gold in French Port

Paris, Oct. 14.—France is secretly trading with the Soviet government of Russia. This was revealed here by the arrival in France of a steamer containing ten tons of gold consigned to the Bank of France.

Despite the official attitude of the French government, which sternly discountenances private trade with Russia, Universal Service was informed through the highest source that the gold which arrived today from "somewhere abroad" was brought by the Bank of France from Soviet Russia through English agents.

The foreign ministry officially admitted that the French government had bought Russian gold. The foreign ministry said the government had purchased sixty millions francs worth of Russian gold, but refused to state from whom it had made the purchase.

In view of President Millerand's repeated assertions of not negotiating with the Soviet government, the purchase of the gold is believed by diplomats to indicate a right about face in the near future of France's attitude toward Russia.

AUTO KILLS CHILD; DRIVER ARRESTED

Pittsfield, Oct. 14.—John M. Flynn, a garage proprietor, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter, after his auto had run over and caused the death of Kathleen Cenaole, six years old, here.

MUST CARRY OUT SUGAR ORDERS

American Co. Notifies Customers of Terms of Payment They Will Be Given

The American Sugar Refining Company has sent a letter to all customers who have unfilled contracts for sugar purchased from the company at 22½ cents a pound during the Summer months, requesting them to carry out their contracts with the company promptly.

The company outlines a plan by which customers may settle for each invoice, after deducting the usual discount of 2 per cent, on part cash and part trade acceptance basis. Unless this offer is accepted by the terms of the contract entered into will remain in full force and effect.

A part of the letter follows:

"In view of the recent very serious decline in sugar prices, we recognize the difficulty of the situation now confronting many of you who have unfilled contracts for refined sugar purchased from us at 22½ cents per pound. We, however, are in the same situation, for we have purchased raw sugar at correspondingly high prices to fill your contracts. In addition, we have to face large losses on our own unsold inventory, also purchased at high prices.

"We desire, however, to be of as much service to you as possible in this crisis, and accordingly we are offering the following plan which we believe will be helpful to the trade and will meet with its approval. To those of you who have not been in a position to withdraw all sugars upon your outstanding contracts, we offer, in the manner herein stated, delayed shipment and terms of payment for such sugars as are not yet withdrawn, in lieu of the present contract terms."

EAST BOSTON CHILD'S LEG BROKEN BY AUTO

While playing in Wadsworth street, George Sidding, aged two and one-half, of No. 861 Saratoga street, East Boston, was struck and knocked down by an automobile truck owned by the East Boston Coal Company and operated by Henry E. Bradley, No. 23 Boardman street. He was taken to the East Boston Relief Hospital in the same machine. He sustained a fractured left leg and scalp wound.

Shakespeare's Second-Best Bedstead

No Second-Best at Moller's

SHAKESPEARE willed his wife, the former Anne Hathaway, of whom it was also said "hath a temper," only his second best bedstead.

At Moller's, when it comes to the Mahogany Four-Poster you've always wanted, you won't find any second best.

You'll find the rich, brown wood that mellows and gets more beautiful with age—the graceful lines and perfect workmanship that make furniture worthy to be handed down.

Dressers, lovely toilet tables, chiffoniers, odd chairs, and even the mahogany candlesticks to complete a charming Colonial bedroom.

Prices at Moller's are always guaranteed lower than the cash prices at any Boston store (a few unimportant price-restricted articles excepted), and Moller's credit system is different.

Peary's North Pole Flag Drifts 400 Miles

Copenhagen, Oct. 14.—The American flag which Peary planted at the North Pole has been found 400 miles away from its original geographical point.

After an expedition of sixteen months in the Arctic regions, full of privation and hardship, Captain Godfred Hansen, leader of the Amundsen auxiliary, returned here. He stated that while laying food depots along the Amundsen trail he found 400 miles from the North Pole the Peary flag, intact in the ice.

Captain Hansen believes that Amundsen will be successful in his dash for the North Pole, although his crew has been diminished.

WORCESTER GAS RATE INCREASED 15 CENTS

The department of public utilities authorized the Worcester Gas Light Company to increase its price to $1.65 per 1,000 cubic feet. The present rate is $1.50. The increase takes effect at once. In issuing its order authorizing the increase, the department says that the increase is tentative and is to remain in effect for six months, at the end of which time experience may show that the rate should be revised.

FACE DISFIGURED WITH PIMPLES

Burned and Itched. Could Not Sleep. Cuticura Heals.

"My face was disfigured with pimples which were big, red and festered and came to a head. They burned and itched so I scratched and made them bleed, and I couldn't sleep sometimes. I thought it would be disfigured for life.

"Then I saw a Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertisement and sent for a free sample. It helped and I used two large cakes of Soap and one fifty-cent box of Ointment and I was healed." (Signed) Miss Johanna Itczak, 32 Prospect St., Hartford, Conn.

Says Pile Remedy Worth $100.00 a Box

"I have had itching piles ever since my earliest recollection. I am 73 years old and have suffered terribly. I have tried many remedies and doctors, but no cure. About 3 weeks ago I saw your ad for Peterson's Ointment. The first application stopped all itching, and in three days all soreness. I have only used one box and consider it am healed. I have my grateful, heartfelt thanks, and may everyone that has pile trouble see this and give your comment, that is worth a hundred dollars or more a box, a trial. Sincerely yours, A. Rewth, Columbus, Ohio."

POLICE DAY OFF UP TO VOTERS

Communities to Settle One in Eight and Two Platoon Bills

Voters in forty-nine cities and towns will decide on November 2 whether they want to grant their policemen one day off in every eight without loss of pay, and in ten communities, including Boston, whether they wish to establish the two-platoon system for firemen.

These, with the Boston city charter bill, constitute the most important in a score of local referenda submitted for the acceptance or rejection of the voters in the presidential election.

The police bill, passed by the last session of the Legislature, provides that "members of the police department of cities and towns within the classified civil service shall be relieved from duty for one day out of every eight days, without loss of pay."

The governing board of each local department is permitted to require the service of the men "in case of any public emergency or of any unusual demand for the services," but must grant the men their respite from duty "as soon thereafter as is practicable."

FORTY-FIVE A YEAR.

It is further provided that the number of days off shall be not less than forty-five in a year and shall not diminish the annual vacation or any other privilege now enjoyed by the men. The act is being submitted this year to these eighteen cities:

Attleboro, Chicopee, Fitchburg, Gloucester, Haverhill, Leominster, Malden, Medford, Melrose, Newburyport, Newton, North Adams, Northampton, Peabody, Pittsfield, Revere, Waltham and Woburn.

And in these thirty-one towns—Arlington, Athol, Belmont, Billerica, Canton, Cohasset, Dalton, Danvers, Dedham, Easthampton, Framingham, Gardner, Great Barrington, Greenfield, Hudson, Lexington, Manchester, Milton, Nahant, Norwood, Reading, Stoneham, Stoughton, Wakefield, Ware, Watertown, Wellesley, Westfield, Weymouth, Winthrop and Winchester.

The two-platoon bill for firemen provides that the fire-fighting forces shall be divided into day and night forces. Boston voters rejected the act last year, but are called upon to accept or reject it again. In addition to Boston, it will be passed upon by the voters of Gloucester, Wakefield, Newton, Swampscott, Melrose, Beverly, Malden, Medford and Winthrop.

VOTE IN WESTFIELD.

The town of Westfield will decide whether it wants to take on the dignity of a city. It will become the thirty-ninth, if it accepts the act. East Brookfield will become, on January 1, the 320th town of the Commonwealth.

Malden will decide whether it wants to adopt the Plan D form of municipal government, consisting of a mayor, four councillors and a city manager. Gloucester will decide whether it desires to continue or abandon the preferential voting law for the nomination and election of its city fathers.

Haverhill voters will be called upon to decide whether they want to experiment with the Plan B form of government, composed of a mayor and a city council, elected by districts as well as at large.

PASS ON SALARIES.

Lawrence and Lynn will be asked to give their mayors a salary-boost to meet the high cost of living, and Lynn is faced with the additional questions of increasing the salary of the city councillor who is a member of the Commission on Ways and Drainage and of increasing by $1 on every $1,000 of taxable valuation, the amount available for school purposes.

Marlboro, too, will pass upon the question of increasing the Mayor's salary, and Methuen the salaries of the mayor and city councillors.

NEW ENGLAND MEN LAUD TRAINING IN AIR FORCE

Twenty-seven New England men who recently enlisted in the air service of the army and who are now at Kelly Field, Texas, have written to Major L. H. Brereton, adj., air service, first army corps area, of the excellent opportunities afforded them to learn trades at the Texas school.

"I wish the average young man could be made to see what advantages the air service in the army is now offering," says Major Brereton. "They can enlist from one to three years and their service is eight hours daily."

BANDITS WOUND BANK HEAD, GET $50,000

Crowds Besiege Election Officials on Closing Day of Enrollment of Voters

Upwards of 10,000 men and women in Boston will be unable to cast their ballots at the coming State election through failure to get their names on the voting list because they delayed until the last day an attempt to register.

Thousands were turned away when the lists closed at the office of the election commissioners and at the various booths in the several wards of the city, the election officials being unable to enroll them.

WOMEN WAIT FOR HOURS.

At least 2,500 were waiting in line at City Hall when the doors closed. Throughout the day the election board's offices were besieged by a crowd which taxed their capacity, many women waiting in line for hours before being registered.

Mayor Peters sent word to election commissioners as the closing hour drew near that he hoped it would be possible to keep the offices open until all had enrolled their names.

Election Commissioner Doherty, however, declared that the law was explicit and that the offices must be closed promptly at 10 p. m.

Hundreds came to City Hall throughout the evening in automobiles and motor trucks, and this scene was re-enacted in the outlying districts. At a majority of the latter places crowds averaging 200 each were turned away when the doors were closed.

DISORDER IN SOUTH BOSTON.

Some disorder was created at the Tuckerman school, and East Fourth street, South Boston, at the closing hour, when those who were unable to register roundly abused the police officer on duty.

Place	Men	Women
Boston	*120,680	*68,776
Beverly	5,215	3,819
Cambridge	15,625	15,934

ARMENIA INVADED BY TURKISH ARMIES

Washington, Oct. 14.—A state of war now exists between Turkey and Armenia. According to dispatches received at the State Department, the Turks, operating in three detachments, have advanced across the Armenian border toward Olti, Bardus and Karakurt, and have started a drive in the direction of Kars. They have occupied Sari Kamish, a most important Armenian railroad point.

Why I Am Opposed to League of Nations

By Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, State Chairman of Republican Women

First I wish it understood that no one has a greater desire, or would work or sacrifice more for an enduring peace between all nations, than I would. I believe all Republicans, as well as Democrats and independents, are like-minded.

We have a League of Nations brought to us from France, made by the Big Four—so-called—one of whom was President Wilson, who signed the contract without the "advice or consent" of our Senate. A contract which could not be made legal without their consent.

As Theodore Roosevelt said, "He (President Wilson) will bring back something the American people will not endorse. There will be confusion, too, and in the end the thing will have to be made right."

And that is what the Republicans mean, and only that, "to have the thing made right." Some of the best and ablest minds of Europe, and of America, feel that it is not made right. There are Republicans who will vote the Republican ticket who are for THE league—some for the league with reservations, some for a league; others who feel we shall be luckier and stronger peacemakers if we keep out of all "entangling alliances." So it is with the Democrats.

WORKABLE CONTRACT.

I believe it is possible, even though forty-one nations have signed the covenant, to gather together an association of nations that will negotiate a peace contract that will be understandable, workable, to which all nations can subscribe without infringing on the integrity of their own institutions. I am sure the forty-one nations mentioned will welcome us on whatever terms are agreeable to us.

We are the greatest nation of the world, and were the most respected until the late war. We have a great task before us to reinstate ourselves and to keep us strong, and this should be our greatest concern at the present moment. We shall, I believe, be in immeasurably safer hands under Republican control.

The old League of Nations will have to be acted upon by the Senate, and I firmly believe it will be more happily handled by a Republican President and Republican Senate.

TRUST REPUBLICANS.

For better agricultural conditions, better industrial and commercial, everything else upon which the comfort, prosperity and progress of our country and homes depend, trust the Republican party, which has a far better record for the last fifty years than the Democratic party. Disaster has always followed in the wake of the Democratic party. And so I am a Republican, and opposed to the Wilson League of Nations.

Senator Harding, to my mind, has made himself clear, his utterances ring true.

On the other hand, the smart words of Governor Cox do not sound to me sincere.

The good people who are promulgating a "Peak-a-boo of Nations," of "Independent Republicans," are beautiful idealists, and we all have a great respect for them, but it has nearly always been found safer for country and home to reduce such idealism to common sense and practical terms. That is what the Republican party, to my mind, is committed to do, and will do, as it did in the slavery and silver contests.

CORRIGAN RAPS 'WAR ON LABOR'

Boston College Professor Says Open Shop Campaign of Capital Spells Disaster

Capital's declaration of war on labor is an attempt to undermine the prosperity and peace of this country, and will precipitate public ownership of public utilities," said Rev. Jones L. Corrigan, S. J., of Boston College in an address to 1100 persons, May of the audience were public school teachers.

"In present economic life is in press of flux," he added. "Reactionary forces are striving to restrain it into old forms and moulds, but the wiser as well try to push back Niles.

"Capital's declaration of war on labor under the guise of a campaign for 'e open shop' came at a most unfair time and will have a most disastrous effect unless checked at once.

"'e General Staff of Capital,' who ordered this offensive, could have made no more fatal attempt at undermining the prosperity and peace of nerica.

Tomorrow Last Day to Pay State Tax

You have one more day of grace in which to pay your State income tax. The law states the tax must be paid on or before October 15. Failure to make the payment is punishable by a fine.

These measures will make for industrial peace:

"The calling off of the campaign for the open shop; no discrimination, either for or against union men; manufacturers working in co-operation with labor; guaranteed steady employment with a minimum wage; base wages on a standard of production with a surplus based on increased production."

How You Can Remove Every Trace of Hair

(Toilet Talks)

A stiff paste made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on a hairy surface about 2 minutes will, when removed, take every trace of hair with it. The skin should then be washed to free it from the remaining delatone. No harm can result from this treatment, but be sure it is delatone you get and you will not be disappointed. Mix fresh as wanted.—Advertisement.

Dear Old Pete:

Just wound up the one swellest day of my life! Since early this morning, when I got an invitation to visit R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. factories, I've been in the midst of millions of Camel cigarettes. Yes sir, right from the rooms where the choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos go into Camels unbeatable blend, straight through to the loading platforms where cases holding 10,000 Camels each are packed into car after car for shipping to every corner and cross roads in the U.S.A.!

Man—the happiest idea you or I ever had as to the size of this Reynolds enterprise, or the number of Camels manufactured daily, is simply piker-stuff! Wipe off the slate and start fresh! Why—Pete, it seemed to me like a couple of those cigarette-making machines could keep half the nation smoking Camels steadily—BUT—honest to goodness, there are hundreds of these machines batting out Camels at the rate of 27,000 an hour—EACH!

And, Pete, you wouldn't have to consult a guide book to know you were in the Camel factories! The atmosphere is just charged with that wonderful aroma you get when you open up a deck of Camels! And, you know, old elephant—you've had a trunk full!

I stood by one of these machines, kind of fascinated. As the Camels dropped into the containers I figured the delight each one would supply! And, how Camels mellow, mild body would hit the right spot and how Camels refreshing flavor would cheer up some smoker's jaded appetite! And, each Camel free from any unpleasant cigaretty aftertaste or unpleasant cigaretty odor! And—

Do You Know a Baby Sick With Constipation

NO thoughtful mother with children in the house will risk being without a good, reliable laxative. It will save many a serious illness, many a doctor's visit.

When the baby cries and is fretful, when the boy has no appetite and won't play, when the girl is listless and feverish, when there are complaints of headaches and colds, the mother can suspect constipation. Give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in the small dose prescribed on the bottle, when you put the child to bed, and with morning the ailment will have disappeared.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a popular compound of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. It acts gently and mildly, and children take it without objection. A sixty-cent bottle is enough to last an average family many months. The ingredients are endorsed in the U. S. Pharmacopoeia, and last year American mothers bought over eight million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from druggists. It is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, and few cautious families are ever without it.

TRY IT FREE

Send me your name and address and I will send you a free trial bottle of my Syrup Pepsin. Address me Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 513 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois. Everybody now and then needs a laxative, and it is well to know the best. Write me today.

Doctors Stand Amazed at Power of Bon-Opto to Make Weak Eyes Strong---According to Dr. Lewis

Guarantee to Strengthen Eyesight 50% In One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Philadelphia, Pa. Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope and help for them. Many those were rarely failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable prescription and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says, after using it: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The awful haze seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for a few days everything seemed clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by overworked, tired eyes which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years both for distance and work, and without them I could not read print or name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by the use of this prescription. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two or four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted said: "Yes, the Bon-Opto prescription is truly a wonderful eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and are used extensively by them in their private practice with very astonishing results, patients on glasses whose eyes were strained through overwork or unfit glasses. I can highly recommend it in cases of weak, watery, inflamed, itching, burning eyes, red lids, blurred vision or for eyes inflamed from exposure to sunsun, dust or wind. It is one of the very few prescriptions I feel should be kept on hand for general use in almost every family." Bon-Opto, referred to above, can be obtained from most druggists the world. It is an ethical proprietary, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is sold in this city by the leading druggists. —Advertisement.

IS MARRIAGE A SUCCESS? READERS GIVE VIEWS

Pathetic, humorous, bitter, sad—many are the types of letters that come to the Marriage Editor, one of the most appealing, from "An Unhappy Single Man," which is published below, presents a question not recognized by the young girls and youths who grow up together in a community where each sex has many friends. What of the man who comes to a strange city, who knows no one, whose work keeps him tied, who lives in an unhomelike lodging house, where the residents are strangers to each other, and who has no opportunity to make real friends—at least, with members of the opposite sex?

The problem is not a new one to social workers. Many churches have tried to solve it. Some have partially succeeded.

How is the lonely man in an unfamiliar city to make real friends? To meet nice girls? To find a life-mate who will appreciate what he has to offer in all sincerity and with the highest intentions, and not prove a mere parasite, an adventuress seeking a new victim?

Read the letter of "An Unhappy Single Man," and if any reader has a good suggestion send it to this column.

Once more the Marriage Editor is obliged to remind readers that names and addresses are not published in this department, but letters in reply to those published are welcome, and are in many cases a real help to contributors who have offered their problems for solution.

THE MARRIAGE EDITOR.

Marriage Editor:

Dear Sir: Is marriage a success? I simply say yes, but—it must be made a success, and I think it can. As for myself I am very unhappy because I am a single man. It makes me jealous when I see how carefully the lunch of my married work-mates is packed and how fancy it looks, while I have only a couple of sandwiches made up without any care in a lunchroom. I am so tired of eating in a lunchroom.

Married men seldom consider that they are comfortable, because men are selfish, awful selfish. As for myself, I am not comfortable at all. I have nobody to take care of me. I am all alone in this world and I am getting tired, very tired, because I have nobody to care for. I have nobody that loves me, and I am so hungry for a little love, real love, family love, and in response I could give love back 1,000 per cent. But there is nobody that loves me. I am very lonely. I have nobody at home that waits for me or wants to kiss me when I come. Oh, it is a lonesome life, a dreadful life.

I will give you a description of my life in a few lines. I live in a furnished room-house. I have a nice square room on the first floor. In the morning I leave the house about 7 o'clock and go to a lunchroom for breakfast; then I go to work. I am home about 5:30, then I go to supper in a lunchroom; then after supper I go home. On my way home I buy the Boston American—I never buy any other; then I sit down in my rocking chair, read my paper, smoke a few pipes. When I get through with the paper, dream a little while—dream how good I could have if I was married. Then I go to bed.

This life I have been leading for many, many years. Can you blame me if I get tired of my life? Work, eat, sleep—that's all—like a horse; with the only difference that I have to feed myself. I have spoken about my life to my comrades; they told me to go to theatres, but my goodness! I am tired of the movies; they are all right for very young people, but grown people get tired of them. They also told me to get married. It is easy to say, "Go and get married," but for some men it is the hardest thing in the world.

I have had experience; I have tried hard in every way to find a life companion, but so far I have not succeed at all. I am not ugly, so what can be the reason? I have come to the conclusion that the girls of today are too fussy, awful fussy; that they are all looking for a rich man, that they do not care in the least for a poor man, because they want to have it easy, as easy as possible. If they cannot get what they want, then they prefer to go to work and stay single. They think they are better off to support themselves than to marry a poor man.

I have no acquaintance with ladies. How can I get acquainted? In the dance halls—well that's dangerous, for a man that is looking for a respectable girl is liable to get acquainted with a bad girl. Is there any way to get acquainted with a respectable girl? I don't see any.

So what is left for me to do? Nothing but resign forever. If anybody says marriage is not a success they are foolish; it is their own fault. Some people have all the chances in the world to get married and be happy, but they won't take a chance; while other people would be only too glad to get married and be happy, but they have no chance.

With the highest respect for the Boston American, I remain,

AN UNHAPPY SINGLE MAN.

ANSWERS I. G. K.

Marriage Editor—I hope this letter will be printed so it may meet the eye of I. G. K., Boston. In his letter he does not mention children. In a case of that kind, what of children? Who will care for and support them? If a man wishes to return to the "free and easy" life he doesn't wish to be tied down with children, so in that case it is the woman who must suffer. The man always score free.

I agree with "Nording," but in the world today that kind of woman would be considered bad, and for the sake of the children a mother must keep her name clean. None can advise in these cases. There are hardly two cases alike. Let things come as they will, and meet each one with the best answer you can.

A BRIDE OF ONE YEAR.

Barre, Vt.

"BACHELOR" IS IRONIC.

Dear Editor—After reading the various opinions concerning matrimony in your columns, I have come to the following conclusion:

Marriage would be a success if both the man and the woman were perfect; if they loved one another; if they had no mothers-in-law, fathers-in-law, sisters-in-law or brothers-in-law. If the men could have at least seven wives; if the wife could enjoy a cigarette with her husband and have at least a couple of love affairs as a side issue; if she was a good cook and could play the piano; if he did not drink, chew or smoke, and washed the dishes; if she had a baby in the house instead of a dog;—if etc., etc.

Now, seeing how perfectly easy it is to find all those simple requirements, how could marriage turn out to be anything but a positive success?

BACHELOR.

"LIKE A WONDERFUL BOOK."

Marriage Editor—My married life has been just like a wonderful book. Why? Because I married for love and not for a meal ticket or a novelty, as so many young girls do. I also had a very short courtship of but three months, so cannot agree with the reader who said six months at least was necessary.

You cannot drive married life with two steering wheels, each going its own way. When they marry, two are made one—why not work as one? My married life is ideal. But of course I consider my husband the best man living, and he feels the same about me. We are not newlyweds, either. If we all had this opinion of our husbands and wives, wouldn't married life be wonderful? If I had a husband like many I have seen I would not stay married.

I would also like to add a few words to our "Turkish friend." Is he just writing those opinions as a joke? If true, he ought to be tarred and feathered. Can you imagine our American man, who is so chivalrous, having a whip hung on the wall to use on his wife? Also, his wife waiting for permission to kiss him on his arrival home? I think he had better go back to his native country to try those tactics, and not try to introduce them here.

I wonder what he is doing here away from his seven noble wives? ONE WHO FOUND THE RIGHT MAN.

BITTER AT TWENTY-ONE

To the Marriage Editor: Is marriage a success? No! I am twenty-one years old and have a baby four years old. I was married when I was sixteen, and what have I got out of it? Not anything. I am not living with my husband because he only works about three months out of a year, and what he earns then isn't enough to support the three of us a whole year. This is what I get out of marriage: a baby to support until she is old enough to support herself; shoes, not even if he was rolling in money; loneliness to hard money; loneliness to hard labor for the rest of my life.

If I had my life to live over again and knew as much about men as I do now, I wouldn't look at the best one that ever walked in a pair of shoes, not even if he was rolling in money.

DISCOURAGED.

Here's One Who Liked the Turk's Letter

Dear Editor: I think that our friend the Turk's letter was immense. Not that the Turkish system would work in America today, precedent would prohibit it, but nevertheless I should like to hear from one of his seven wives, and I don't think I should be far wrong in chancing that her report would be no more distressing than some of the harrowing letters which continually get into your column.

Nowhere in this wide world can we find absolute content and happiness, but it is those of our number who make as light as possible of their cares and troubles who get the real joy from life.

No Fear Now of Indigestion

A Host of People Seem to Thrive on What Used to Provoke Indigestion Before They Learned of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

When the stomach becomes sour, with gastritis and heartburn due to indigestion or dyspepsia, relief may be had by one of two Stuart's Dyspepsia

Tablets. Simply chew them, no hot water nor any other fillers for a stomach perhaps already too much overcrowded.

These tablets supply to the stomach the alkaline effect which is what relieves the sour acid condition. They also contain pancreatin to help digest the starchy foods such as potatoes, rice, oatmeal, white flour, etc.

Get a 50 cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, have them on hand at all times and thus have no fear of indigestion or dyspepsia.

The fact that these tablets are on sale everywhere in the U. S. and Canada shows how generally recognized they are as an efficient aid when the dyspeptic stomach needs a little help.

Wake up feeling like a "live wire," with your stomach regular, cold gone, and a clear head, rosy skin and sweet disposition. No griping—no inconvenience. Children love Cascarets too. 10, 25, 50 cents.

"Whole Family Got Good Results from Mentho-Laxene Cough Medicine"

Universal endorsement of a medicine which is "guaranteed or money back" means something to every family. In the interest of living days. If you fail to get satisfaction, you can ask for your money back—less than fifty people in 10 years have ever asked for their money back, and that is a real endorsement. Mentho-Laxene is concentrated—a small bottle is made into a full pint of cough syrup by adding home-made sugar syrup or honey.

Mrs. Oscar Fiitsch, Albany, N. Y., writes: "I have been using your Mentho-Laxene cough syrup, and it gives the whole family good results, and I think there is nothing on the globe to beat it for I tried most everything, but nothing like Mentho-Laxene for tiresome colds. Especially good for children and elderly people, because it is pleasant to take, also safe. For coughs, colds, coughs, hoarseness, bronchitis, difficult breathing, tightness of severe colds, this is the medicine that acts so quickly and surely. Your druggist has it—or can get it from the jobber. Do try it.—Advertisement.

HARDING HOLDS BIG LEAD IN STRAW BALLOT

As the three weeks' straw balloting on the presidency, conducted nation-wide by the Boston American, draws to its close, Senator Harding still maintains his enormous lead over Governor Cox.

The final results on the poll will be announced Saturday.

While returns from New York today show that Cox has strength in that State, but few occupational groups have cast their ballots for the champion of the League of Nations.

CHICAGO PROFESSORS FOR COX.

Today, professors of University of Chicago give him 46 votes to 28 for Harding.

Out of 114 employees of the Charles Williams stores in Hpokilyn, N. Y., Cox has 55 votes and Senator Harding 53.

At a theatre in Westchester Village, N. Y., Cox is given 48 and Harding 33 votes.

Debs also carries another group in today's returns. The Great Lake seamen give the Socialist leader 24 votes, Harding 16 and Cox 13.

One of the surprises in the vote of the doughboys. Among 154 members of the Third Division, A. E. F., Harding has 113 ballots, Cox 23 and Debs 18.

Among 45 bluejackets and marines Cox received 8 votes, Debs 6 and Harding 24.

HARDING HOLDS LEAD.

The vote of the Chicago University professors was due to their still tenacious support of the Wilson policies, although Harding received enough of a percentage to insure him a large vote, even among the members of President Wilson's former profession.

To balance this comes the Chicago school teachers, giving Harding 40 votes to 13 for Cox.

The day's totals show Harding is scaled down to a two to one lead, although in the grand total he maintains the three to one lead which he has held from the start of the straw voting.

Another significant fact is that the groups which are going to vote for Debs on election day, invariably give Harding a much larger vote than they do Cox.

ARMY OFFICERS FOR HARDING.

Out of twenty-eight voting, the Republican nominee is given twenty-three votes and the Democratic representative but five.

An almost four to one percentage is given Harding in the scattering vote taken among transients at the South Terminal station. The tally on this balloting shows Harding received 74 votes and Cox 21. Debs comes third with seven votes to his credit.

The question on how the Suffolk County officers and employes stand is answered in their votes. Out of thirty-two canvassed, Harding is credited with 16 and Cox 11. Debs ran behind Christensen, receiving but two votes to the Farmer-Labor candidate's three.

DEBS GAINS STRENGTH.

HERO MULLALY IS BURIED

Fund for Relief of Gate Tender's Family is Swelled to $600

The funeral of James W. Mullaly, North Cambridge gatetender, who was killed while vainly attempting to save Mrs. Emma Osgood from an express train at North Cambridge crossing, was held today.

Requiem high mass was celebrated by the Rev. James P. F. Kelley at St. John's Church, North Cambridge, before a large gathering of friends and relatives of the dead man and many citizens who appreciated his heroic act.

It was announced that the fund, started by North Cambridge business men for Mrs. Mullaly and her six children, left without means of support, amounted to more than $600. Contributions to this fund are being received by Treasurer Edward Griffin, North Cambridge Co-Operative Bank, and by the Boston American, which will forward them to Mr. Griffin.

REIMER ACQUITTED OF RECKLESS DRIVING

FARMER WARNED OF HOARDING

Federal Reserve Head Tells Delegates Financial Crash Is Sure to Follow

Washington, Oct. 14.—The artificial stimulation of food prices by the destruction of crops or the withholding of farm products such as wheat and cotton from the market was strongly condemned by Governor Harding of the Federal Reserve Board in an address to the convention of farm organizations.

Governor Harding told the delegates such methods were certain to bring on a financial crash which would ruin the entire agricultural industry. He urged representatives of the farm organizations to go back home, keep calm, suffer a little loss if necessary and strive to put their markets on an orderly basis.

The farmers were sternly censured for suggesting the adoption of measures which might decrease production or raise prices by other artificial means. Governor Harding denounced the "night riders" and the wanton burning of cotton mills and gins in the South in unmeasured terms.

URGES LEAGUE DEBATE BY BOTH CANDIDATES

New York, Oct. 14.—Proposal that the two big party presidential candidates meet in open debate on the league issue, and that spellbinders of both parties also clash in different sections of the country, was made here by Senator Pat Harrison, head of the speakers' bureau of the Democratic party in a telegram to Senator Harry S. New, head of the bureau for the Republican party.

Vose Small Grand

A wonderful musical instrument, beautiful to the eye, delightful to the ear; rich in tone and volume values. To the musically intellectual it appeals as the final word in small Grand perfection.

Nothing shows Vose piano value like a comparison with others—it is then that one is convinced with Vose superiority.

As a result of the most scientifically economical use of space in its building it has in a generous measure the wonderful tone volume of the larger Vose Piano.

This model is for the music or living room of limited floor space. It gives the artistic touch to the home.....TERMS

He sure could make "good eaters"

HE had the knack of mixing candy—George Close. You couldn't fool him on a "good eater," the men who worked with him say.

It's the knack in the mixing that makes a "good eater." And the Chief passed his ways on to some of the younger men at Close's.

Top grade candy whenever you want it—in a handy package to slip in your pocket. That's Close's idea. At drug stores, newsstands, fruit stores, just where you're passing. Chocolate covered peppermint, cocoanut or nougat—"good eaters" in bar form! The George Close Company, Cambridge, Mass.

The world's largest user of the purest and best maple sugar offers you the new Karo Maple

A rare and delicious syrup at a moderate price. Don't worry about the high price of maple syrup. Of special interest to every mother

The makers of Karo Maple use annually over a thousand tons of the purest and best flavored maple sugar from the finest maple groves in Vermont and Canada.

This is a greater sale, by far, than any kind of maple syrup offered.

The moderate price of Karo Maple is also an attraction—it costs less than any other syrup of approaching quality and flavor.

Go to your grocer today and get a can of Karo Maple, in the Green Can. Try it just once—on biscuits, waffles or pancakes—or as a spread for buttered bread or toast.

Compare it for price and flavor with other maple syrups. If you are not satisfied return the balance of the can to your grocer, and get your money back.

Catarrh Of The Stomach Is Dangerous

"Thousands Have It and Don't Know It," Says Physician. Frequently Mistaken for Indigestion—How to Recognize and Treat.

"Thousands of people suffer more or less constantly from furred, coated tongue, bad breath, sour, burning stomach, frequent vomiting, rumbling in stomach, [illegible] tions, gas, wind and [illegible] and call it indigestion when in reality their trouble is due to gastric catarrh of the stomach," writes a New York surgeon.

Catarrh of the stomach is dangerous because the mucous membrane lining of the stomach is thickened and a coating of phlegm covers the surface so that the digestive fluids cannot mix with the food and digest it. This condition soon breeds deadly disease. The fermented, unassimilated food [illegible] is polluted and carries the infection throughout the body. Gastric ulcers are [illegible] form and frequently an ulcer is the [first] sign of deadly cancer.

In catarrh of the stomach a good and safe treatment is to take before [meals] a teaspoonful of pure Bisurated Magnesia in half a glass of hot water as hot as you can comfortably drink it. The hot water [washes] the mucous from the stomach [and] draws the blood to the stomach [illegible] bisurated magnesia [illegible] for the mucus and increases the efficiency of the hot water treatment. Moreover, Bisurated Magnesia will serve as a powerful but harmless antacid which will [neutralize] any excess hydrochloric acid that may [be] [in] your stomach and sweeten the food. Easy, natural digestion without distress of any kind should soon follow. Bisurated Magnesia is not a laxative, is [illegible] pleasant and easy to take and can be obtained from any local druggist. Don't confuse Bisurated Magnesia with other forms of Magnesia, milk, citrates, etc., but get it in the pure bisurated form (powder or tablets), especially prepared for this purpose.

UNION WARNS OF MILL WAGE WAR

Lawrence Operators Informed Effort to Cut Pay Will Be "Resisted" by Workers

Lawrence, Oct 14. Lawrence mill men are in receipt of letters [illegible] them that "the disturbance of industrial peace" will result from wage cutting programs already [illegible] textile manufacturers if attempt is made to further them here. The letter is signed by Ben Legere, secretary of the Amalgamated Textile Workers of America.

The letter in part reads: "Under the lead of the American Woolen Company which appears to assume the dictatorship of policies for the textile industry, wage reductions have been announced in many textile towns. In other places [illegible] propaganda is being carried on to prepare the workers for a major wage cuts. The organized workers of Lawrence hereby serve notice that any attempt to lower wages in Lawrence will be looked upon as a hostile act on your part and will be met by immediate action on the part of the workers.

"We warn you that the workers cannot be fooled by [illegible] arguments about falling [illegible] depression causing [illegible] and are prepared to use our organized power to resist any attempt to lower present standards.

"We take this means of informing you of our intentions so there will be no question as to where the responsibility will rest for the disturbance of industrial peace that will surely result from any attempt to carry out in Lawrence [illegible] program already embarked upon by power crazed textile [illegible] in other centres.

"We hope that Lawrence manufacturers may be guided by more intelligent understanding of the industrial situation and a saner policy in dealing with labor [illegible] hostility on your part will result in action without further notice."

How We Care For Your Meat Cars

When you see a Swift Refrigerator Car going by in a train, it seems a simple thing that it should be carrying fresh meat up and down the country.

Like most of the packer activities which contribute to your welfare, you are so used to having this going on uninterruptedly, day in, day out, throughout the year, that you are likely to take it as a matter of course.

But it is not a matter of course. Every car you see going by means long hours of minute, scientific, painstaking care in preparation for what it is doing.

Every time a car comes in it is washed out thoroughly with scalding water. If any taint, any foreign matter, were present, this would get rid of it. Even the meat hooks are taken down from the racks and scalded with water and live steam.

When the car is thoroughly cleansed we put in 5,000 pounds of ice. But that is only preliminary. It only cools the car to the proper temperature. By the time the car is moved over to receive its load, this first ice is melted. More is then put in to keep the car cool.

Then the meat is hung on the sterilized hooks and the load of food is ready for its journey. It arrives as it leaves, clean, fresh, wholesome, appetizing; and your meat supply goes on unaffected by seasons or weather.

This is only a part of the service which Swift & Company furnishes, at a profit to itself so small—averaging a fraction of a cent per pound on all products over a period of years—that if the profit were handed on to the consumer, it would make a difference of less than a nickel a week in the meat bill of the average American family.

Lard—pure as an Easter lily

WHAT makes your pie-crust so crisp—so delicious? Pure shortening—real lard of course!

You'd never risk your reputation as a pie-maker by using impure lard, or a substitute. It's the same with Bond Bread.

Pure lard adds a finishing touch to that "home-made" flavor. The housewives who designed it showed us that.

To insure the most tempting flavor, we use an even higher grade of lard than you buy for your kitchen. The Bond (read it on each wrapper) is your guarantee of purity and flavor.

But purest lard is only one item. Purest flour, yeast, milk, water, salt and sugar—all free from substitutes—that is what Bond Bread is made of.

All Fat People

Easily Reduce

The world owes a debt of gratitude to the author of the now famous Marmola Prescription, and is still more indebted for the reduction of this harmless, effective obesity remedy to tablet form. They are so convenient to take, and as pleasant as candy. One after each meal and at bedtime will quickly reduce your weight, two, three or four pounds a week, and leave no evil effects such as loose, flabby skin and unsightly wrinkles. Just go on eating what you like—leave exercise to the athletes—take your little tablet as directed and soon you will be your natural self, cloaked in firm flesh and trim muscles. Marmola Prescription Tablets may now be obtained at all drug stores, or by writing direct to the Marmola Co., 92 Garfield Building, Detroit, Mich., and their reasonable price—one dollar for a good size box—leaves no excuse for dieting or violent exercise for the reduction of the overfat body to normal proportions.

Curling Hair Like This Promotes Its Health

For those whose hair is straight and lank nothing better could be recommended [illegible] the silmerine method. This [illegible] sures a beautiful curliness which is perfectly natural in appearance, and the health of the hair is not affected as where the heated iron is used. A few ounces of liquid silmerine, which can of course be had at any drug store, lasts a long time, as it is quite economical to use. It is pleasant to use, not being either sticky nor greasy, and is easily applied with a clean tooth brush. The hair should be moistened the full length before doing it up. The pretty wavy effect in evidence in three hours is surprising to those who try this simple method the first time. The liquid also serves as an excellent dressing, giving the hair a delightful gloss.—Advertisement.

Five horses were disqualified or withdrawn on the third lap of the test, the hard and hilly going from St. Johnsbury to here. The thoroughbreds, David Craig and Moscowa, made the best time of the day, but the pair of army mounts retained their comfortable lead over the field and appeared to be in good shape despite of the fast pace they are setting, which continues to amaze the experts.

While the grade thoroughbreds of the army, Bunkie and Mile Denise, are twelve points ahead of the Arabs of Mr. Brown in speed, the latter hopes to win by showing better condition at the finish and the point gaining fact of their requiring less to eat.

BIG COLLEGE GRID TEAMS IN PRIME FORM FOR WEEK END GAMES

END PLACES PUZZLE COACHES

Harvard, Yale and Dartmouth Weak in This Department—Few Teams Well Fixed

"Remember Milo's end, Wedged in the timber which he strove to rend."
—(Earl of Roscommon, 1633-1684

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Of course we don't remember Milo's end—either one of them, in fact—nor do we, at the moment, recall the football team that Milo coached. But, from the foregoing description, we would judge that Milo's end was in the same class with the majority of gridiron wing men performing on this season's college football elevens. With but a limited number of exceptions, they all seem to become wedged in the timber they should be breaking up.

There is an end problem at Yale, an end problem at Harvard, an end problem at Dartmouth, and at Penn [illegible] and Penn State and Pittsburg and at various and sundry other [illegible] in the football world. [illegible] of Boston College, West Virginia and Syracuse have the coaches been reasonably satisfied with the work of their wing men, and even in those institutions there is noted a paucity of end substitutes.

Spears Shifts Bower to Halfback Position

That the individual star of the recent Dartmouth-Penn State game was [illegible] responsible for Dartmouth's defeat [illegible] [illegible] Bower [illegible] [illegible] Jordan, a [illegible] halfback.

[illegible] Penn State's winning [illegible] was [illegible] forward pass [illegible] formation. On this play [illegible] was the intended [illegible] of the pass, but [illegible] team was [illegible] the left [illegible] to the right where [illegible] team mates could not give him [illegible] pass the slightest protection. Bower failed to note the danger [illegible]. He made the pass and [illegible] of Penn State intercepted [illegible] with a clear [illegible] before him.

Consequently the Dartmouth players were forced to [illegible] their charge [illegible] the State [illegible] who then was traveling up the opposite side of the field [illegible] was driven over the side lines [illegible] from the goal was due [illegible] to the superior speed of the [illegible] Dartmouth men.

Williams' Strength Is Largely Offensive

The strength of the Williams team which is to oppose Harvard on Saturday [illegible] offence. [illegible] is indicated through a study of the detailed account of Saturday's contest between the Purple and [illegible] Union College of Schenectady, N. Y. In the first period of that game [illegible] line [illegible] first down [illegible] period. After that Williams kept possession of the pigskin and by so doing ran up a score of thirty-five points.

[illegible] team from Williamstown [illegible] better brand of defense [illegible] the Crimson on Saturday [illegible] scoring large [illegible] rushing tactics may [illegible] a sizeable score.

Centre College Requests Non-Boston Referee

Word comes from Cambridge that Centre College, the spectacular Kentucky [illegible] team that opposes Harvard [illegible] weeks from Saturday has refused to accept Nathan A. Tufts as referee of the game [illegible] season [illegible] that Tufts is a native of Greater Boston.

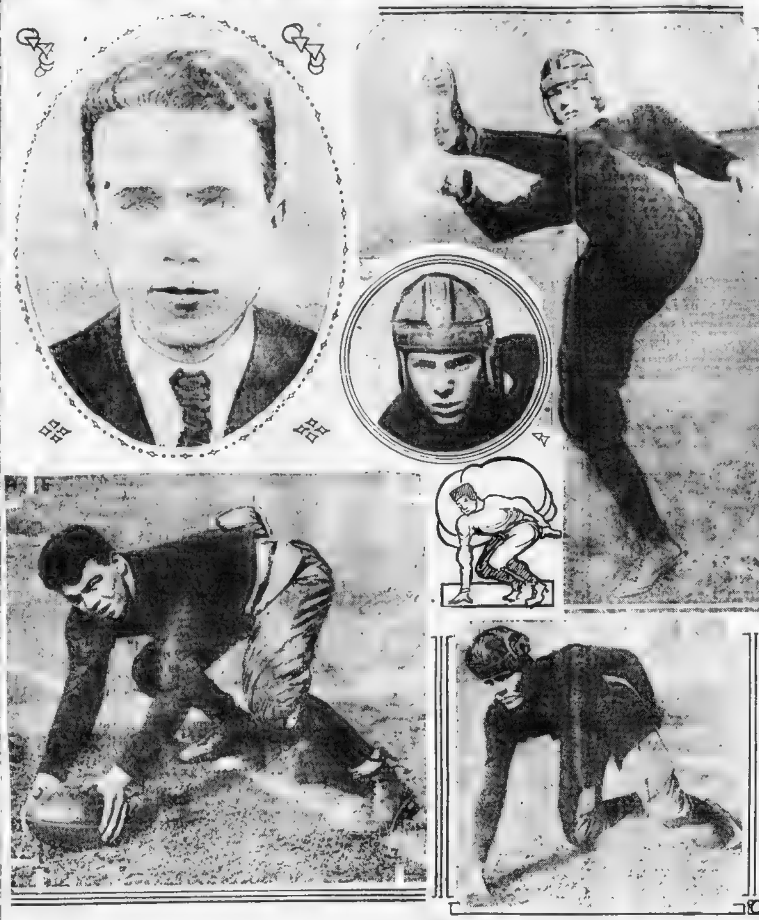
Coach Praises Boston College High Squad



Captain William J. Doyle, centre, and Arthur McManus, tackle. Above, Leo Daley, coach, and Jim Cassell, halfback. In circle, Jim Higgins, fullback.

By LEO DALY,
Coach of Boston College High.

About forty-five boys answered this year's call for candidates for the football team. Most of them were light and inexperienced, but all were anxious to give their best to Boston College High. Several good prospects were lost to the squad by failure to observe the three month rule in vogue among the high schools.

[illegible] answered the [illegible] William Doyle and James Cassell, who is performing brilliantly this Fall, but who played only a few early games last year because of an injury. Several substitutes from last year's [illegible] thirty boys, and practice is held daily at Franklin Field.

Doyle Ranks Other School Centres

To James Higgins and Jim Cassell have been given the halfback assignments, at least for the present. Both boys are members of the baseball and track teams and use to good advantage their knowledge there gained on the football field. They are [illegible] him.

Shifty Players and Good Plungers

Both lads are fast and shifty, good at interference and among the best [illegible] plungers. [illegible] running a close race for [illegible] best choice at present [illegible] lad who does [illegible] know the word "quit."

[illegible] and Marley [illegible] improvement [illegible] new to their positions [illegible] complete [illegible] and are aggressive. At [illegible] of the best boys on the squad for interference and is a sure tackler. [illegible] like Higgins he is one of the first in uniform every day.

Victorious in Games Played to Date

Sheehan will do well this year. McDonald, Allendorf and Daley have received most of the end assignments this year. Mulligan, Lyons, Falon and Barke will be of great assistance in the backfield. All are new at football but they are progressing rapidly.

Two games have been played thus far. We defeated St. James High of Haverhill 14-7. They gave us a real battle and proved to be one of the [illegible] teams for [illegible] [illegible] handling [illegible] up to the [illegible]

Our prospects [illegible] good. We have a [illegible] team [illegible] Boston College High has ever had but as last year, we hope to be among the leaders when the curtain is rung down.

BASEBALL HOUSE CLEANING PROMISED AT BIG LEAGUE MEETING

World's Series Scandal Results in Move to Oust National Commission

New York, Oct. 14. — With the World's Series out of the way base ball folk will now turn to the political side of the game.

In other years the baseball public at large did not take any especial interest in the wrangles and bickerings of the magnates, but with the game due for a house cleaning fandom is keenly interested today.

The first concerted move on the part of a small clique of baseball men who have gone on record as favoring a new controlling body for the game will come next Monday.

A joint meeting of the club owners of the two major leagues has been called for Chicago, with the announced purpose of finding a suitable substitute for the national commission.

President John A. Heydler of the National League, the owners of the two Chicago clubs, Pittsburgh, the two New York clubs and the two Boston clubs are behind the movement and much is promised.

JOHNSON TO FIGHT PLAN.

It remains to be seen how much these pioneers in proposed baseball reform will be able to accomplish. That President Ban Johnson of the American League and certain of his colleagues will fight the plan is considered a certainty and one well informed baseball man who, for obvious reasons, does not want to be identified, said that the magnates will meet, but they will do nothing radical.

It seems to be the opinion among a majority of the major league club owners that the scandal of the 1919 World's Series will soon be forgotten and that the old ship baseball can resume an even keel by the coming Spring.

MAY BE ONLY REUNION.

Ever since the minors brought about the abrogation of the national agreement there has been frost in the air and a good many leading owners on both sides of the fence feel that it is time for a get-together meeting.

PENN STATE TO HAVE $100,000 TRACK HOUSE

State College, Pa., Oct. 14.—A new $100,000 track house and training quarters is a thing of the near future at Penn State, as the result of a meeting of former athletes held here on Alumni Home Coming Day. About seventy-five former wearers of the "S" heard Hugo Bandek outline the needs for new and larger quarters and within fifteen minutes a sum of $31,000 had been subscribed. The additional promise of half the cost of the building from another alumnus insures the success of the project.

The present track house is entirely inadequate to take care of the athletes and the athletic teams.

What Is Baseball Going to Do?

An impression is growing in certain baseball quarters that all this baseball hullabaloo will wind up like the usual baseball hullabaloo.

That is to say, it will wind up nowhere. The public of Cincinnati and the public of Chicago paid good money, and a lot of it, to see a crooked baseball series. So far as we are able to learn, no attempt has been made by baseball at restitution to the public in any form.

So far as we are able to learn, no attempt has even been made to expunge from the records of the game this fraudulent transaction.

It has developed that the baseball executives suspected the honesty of the series from the very beginning, but permitted it to be played out.

It has developed that their suspicion grew from day to day, but they permitted a bunch of crooked ball players to go through another season down to the last week, and the magnates have the public's money in their pockets.

Not until the courts took charge of matters did the baseball administrators show any disposition to take the public into their confidence, and up to now baseball has not, of its own volition, taken any material steps to purge itself.

At meetings, a lot of talk, but the same administration remains in control.

What has baseball done? NOTHING.

WHAT IS BASEBALL GOING TO DO?

We fear the answer is the same.

World Wonder Horse to Race Abroad

By ED CURLEY

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 14.—Man o' War, the greatest horse of the century, will probably run in England. This wonderful piece of horseflesh may carry the Glen Riddle colors in the Ascot Gold Cup. This is a race over the regular cup route of two miles and a quarter, and the winner must be a real thoroughbred to stand the gaff.

The idea of sending Man o' War abroad was discussed by Sam Riddle and the party that came here to witness the triumph of the great horse.

All but Riddle voted to send Man o' War across the sea. He capitulated and then put the proposition up to Trainer Feustel.

The latter agreed to abide by the final verdict, so it looks now as if the wonder horse will seek new fields to display his marvelous speed and energy.

The Ascot Cup is run in July, so Man o' War wouldn't have to leave here for several months.

While Riddle discusses retiring Man o' War, he has such a strong pride [illegible] will be in the saddle of the champion.

A SPLENDID SERIAL OF AMERICAN HOME LIFE

Rufus and His Wife Await the Homecoming of Their Son and Daughter With Some Misgivings

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER II.

THERE was a long silence after Mrs. Throckmorton finished reading the passage in her son's letter. It was only when her husband began to fidget in the big chair at which they sat on either side of the table at which the supper had been seated that she spoke.

"Well," he opened, with a half laugh, "I guess that Nelsonville, when I made my fortune, is a good enough place for me to spend it in."

His wife shook her head dubiously. "I don't know, my dear," she demurred. "This is a rather dull place for young people, don't you think?"

"No, I don't!" her husband declared. "It is where you and I lived during our young married days and ever since and we've been comfortable here, too."

Yes, she admitted, it had been comfortable enough. Within the limits of the town's resources it had certainly been a pleasant place to live in. Nelsonville made no difference to that. It was now. But there was the world to be seen—and they'd want to see more of it, perhaps. In one of her letters to me Mary said she loved New York better than any other place she was ever in."

"She was never in so many other places," her father sniffed. "At Philadelphia, where she was at school, she ran on to New York two or three times to see some opera or hear some big singer or something. So this town and Philadelphia and New York are the only places she knows anything about."

"From what Peter has often said," the mother ventured, "I fancy the New Yorker has a chance to get to know it with all that's worth while in that big city in the world anyway. He said to me in his first letter after he landed in this country that just to be in New York was a liberal education in itself."

Rufus Throckmorton snorted. "In spite of that I find that our little Mary has been able to make good in New York, even if she did come from little old Nelsonville."

"She did not get all of her education here, you must remember," the wife commented.

An Optimistic View

"Oh, well!"—the father straightened his broad shoulders as if determined to dislodge some care that had threatened to perch there — I guess when the children get back home they'll find it no nice that they'll forget all about New York, or any other place, for that matter"

The thought recurred to him again and again during the days that followed. It was lovely Spring weather, and the Middle-Western town had never looked prettier than now. At one end were the factories—his own the largest among them—that had "put the town on the map," as Peter Throckmorton had often said facetiously.

As Rufus walked down from his home morning after morning to the office his children's return he noted with satisfaction that the new factories that had been built had all taken the direction leading from the residential district. He had set this fashion with his own building—the business increased with leaps and bounds that made expansion of his present quarters necessary. Other manufacturers had followed his example

Yes, Nelsonville was growing fast. And all the business was in a fine street of from the town centre. The homes ran west

"And the homes are pretty, too," he mused, eyeing the smooth green lawns around each house. "And no lie is the best-looking in town, Mary always claimed that it was."

He smiled as he recalled how she had said on her return from boarding school that she was glad their house was big and substantial—"not a wooden cottage, with a Queen Anne front and Mary Anne back."

He had laughed so heartily at her speech that she had thought it only fair to inform him that it was not original with her.

"She is a clever girl," he reflected now, "and will be a great addition to society in this town. If she has gotten hold of new ideas in New York she can put them into practice here."

The couple in the rocking chair had continued their talk of their children's return when the wife noticed signs of restlessness in her husband. Knowing how he hated to be interrupted in his reading when he had prophesied that the children would be so glad to get back home that they would never want to leave it again

Big Future for His Son

"There's a big future for Peter in my business here," he had argued "As for Mary, she will queen it alongside of you, Sophie, and later will carry some fine chap and settle near us. Perhaps it may even be that her husband can go into our business, too—for it's as big now that it will hold two men with half to do. And he—"

The count was broken by the sudden outburst of Mrs. Rufus' wife had seized the arm clasped everything. I realize I'm different even in Mary's letters, and in Peter's, too. Wait and see what they want."

To Be Continued.

Scott

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate

SCOTT

RACIAL ORIGIN — Doubtful.

SOURCE—Also doubtful.

The obvious explanation, but one which is not entirely satisfactory, is that it was originally a name added to the given name in order to describe nationality. Undoubtedly this actually is the true origin of the name in a great many cases, for in the old English words there are instances of surnames as "Malcolm le Scot," which of course, could have no other meaning

But this does not explain everything. There are more ancient records in Italy, in France and in Germany, as well as Anglo-Saxon England, which prove that "Scot," one form or another, was rather to spread as a given name, and as a descriptive name added to the given name. Latin inscriptions give us the form "Scotnus" and "Scoto," the latter apparently being a common name among the Teutonic Franks who lived in the northern part of France. The name was also common among the subjects of the Emperor Charlemagne and among other Teutonic races as "Scotardus," with syllable, it is to be noted, similar to Richard, Reynard, Leonard, etc., a distinctly Teutonic compound. It was also an Anglo-Saxon given name, as "Scota," and the place-name Scottowe is simply a development of the Anglo-Saxon "Scotebo" or "grave of Scota."

In those days there was no such name as Scotland, though in the Celtic tongue Ireland was known as "Scota." It was not until the Middle Ages that, as the name of a country, it was transferred to Scotland in common usage.

The existence of the family name in so many countries indicates it often flowed from the given name, but where the given name first appeared is still a mystery.

Tomorrow—Tallman.

Wedding an Outdoor Man

By Beatrice Fairfax

"THE man I love is different from any other man I've ever known. I don't say this because we love each other. I don't even say it in praise of him—but in grave doubt. He is loved by one who has dug into the wilderness and he spends most of his time dragging it back by packing. He associates with no one but me, and during all our months of friendship I have never caught him lying or deceiving me. So I don't know whether a man of his type would make a good husband. He was born in Switzerland, but received his education here. I have often invited him to dances and parties, but he always refuses, though he lets me go, and trusts me. He dreads the city and seems to care only for the pine-clad hills around our town. He has asked me to marry him, but, as I said before, I'm not sure that a dreamer will make a good husband."

So writes a girl who signs herself Ruth.

Strangely enough, her letter reached me while I was spending a fortnight at camp on a lake set

Man and Two Dogs

in the heart of the Adirondacks. I read it after a morning spent in following narrow mountain trails through forests of pine and spruce and fragrant balsam. I'd been augmenting breakfast, with luscious handfuls of ripe raspberries plucked as I plunged through dewy tangles of bush

With me on my morning stroll were a man and two dogs. The man was one who stands for success in the world of finance as well as in that other world of organized helpfulness to humanity. Restless, nervous, tense in his every fibre—not there on the trail the man had been at all. Proud of his cultivated devotion, happy in his love for the clean-limbed life and the fragrant woodlands he had been for a morning the simple, frank, relaxed being life planned him to be.

"By his Summer vacation you shall know him" might almost be a proverb of revelation. It might help us to index human nature.

There are men galore who find their fortnight's vacation most delightful spent in fashionable "Summer hotels" which concentrate into their compass all the complex artificial joys of dancing and dressing and dining and—putting up a bluff" in society's most elaborate fashion. Which of us hasn't laughed at the "Summer boy," and laughing—hasn't dismissed him from mind as by no means and on no terms a real man?

Which of us doesn't feel that the "real man" of the world is likely to choose a vacation of hunting or fishing or tramping instead of that of dropping dinner coats and carefully thought out combinations of soft flannel and loose jackets?

Does all this sound a far cry from Ruth and her question I fancy not. I think Ruth is already multiplying two by twenty-six and figuring out that if a man who loves a fortnight in the woods is likely to be a sane and healthy citizen, something may also be said for the chap who loves the big outdoors all the year 'round.

Anything may be overdone, however. All of us must learn to meet life in its many phases. One of the penalties we pay for civilization is that it demands of us constant readjustment to constantly varying conditions. We can't sit down in a progressive world and expect the whirling globe to stop with us. We aren't free to find a little niche into which we just fit and to stay there—unless we stay alone

Almost every one of us owes something to some one else of us. Each of us has to deal with others of us. Our very living depends on others. To be fed and clothed is a complicated process depending on systems and the folks making them up.

So we can't—we fails—run our own tastes and our own likes and dislikes.

We pay for our loves and friendships and for our very existence in terms of sacrifice. It is not money which pays—it may be our time. It may be merely our tastes and prejudices. But pay we must

So Ruth if your "wilderness man" wants to marry you and to make you happy in a world of certain customs and requirements he must somewhat adjust himself to them. He needn't dance or go about to society affairs. But he must make friends with you. He must do something of the give and take of social contacts. He must manage to make friends with those who are dear and dear to you

Love's Nature

As a hermit or a recluse, as a dreamer and a seeker of woodland rambles, he could not earn the means of supporting a wife and home. But if his painting or writing means a livelihood, if he has the practical ability to take care of you—the very things you question in him make your man the finer, nobler individual.

The man who loves nature, the man who gets a deep and sacred joy from the great outdoors the man who is reverent of the beauty of the world in which he lives, is the finer citizen, the nobler individual, the more worthy human being because he is really one with the world which gave him existence. We are all part of nature. If we love and understand her, we are the finer, simpler, more complete and better because of it.

"I am part of all that I see" said a great teacher. If we are other than are those who don't know and who remember only the dark side of life, we are bigger and sweeter for it. Man made the city—God made the Social Strategy

"I know that I am ugly and poor, and I suppose that the girls do not admire me," said Algernon de Smith; "but," he added "Miss Birdie Montmorency paid me a very high compliment last evening at the ball." "How did she come to do that?" inquired his friend Rubberaty, eyn cally. "I don't know how it came about she usually puts me fifth or sixth on her list of dances, but last night she put me down for the very first dance of all." "I know she did," replied Rubberaty. "I asked her what she meant by such eccentricity, and she said that the dance the first dance with you to get it off her mind so that she could enjoy herself for the rest of the night"

A Youthful Financier

When young Harold came home for the holidays after his first term at school, he said a touching thing to his father. "You know, daddy, you should not have given me your photograph to take to school," he said; "every time I looked at it I wanted to cry." His father gave him a dollar for saying that and treasured the saying. Harold's mother returned from a half-term visit to the school. She reported "Harold said such a touching thing, Mr. he said, 'you should not have given me your photograph. Every time I look at it I want to cry.' I —I gave him a dollar," confessed Harold's happy mother, a break in her voice

Always Something Expensive

"Yes, said the young wife proudly, my father always gives something expensive when he makes presents" "So I discovered when he gave you away," remarked the young husband.

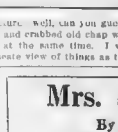
Mrs. Solomon Says—

By HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

MY Daughter, a woman seeketh love with prayer and with trembling

But a man regardeth love as a game of chance, and a wife as a matter of luck. Yet, when a prize is offered him, he is exceeding industrious, and harder to please than a woman that shoppeth on a charge account.



Now, I quest oned a Young Man, saying.

"Wherefore, oh Philanderer, dost thou squander thy youth and thy sentiment upon 'seconds' and light loves, and 'also-rans?' How shalt thou hope to find the True Love if thou flittest after every new love? For Love is not a Roman candle, but an altar fire!"

And he made answer, lightly, saying,

"Nay, Woman! How shall I recognize the Real Love, if I have not known all its fifty seven imitations? How shall I find the 'One Woman,' until I have known at least an hundred women, and loved at least a score of them?

"How shall I discover the Right Girl, if I have never dallied with the Wrong Girl? For be that would know the happiness of True Love must first have suffered from sentimental boredom!"

Now, it came to pass that, after many moons, I saw the youth, and again questioned him, saying:

But he answered me wearily, saying:

"Yea, verily, Mother! I have found MANY of her—even the Perfect Being of my dreams

"Lo, she is fairer than the rose of morning, sweeter than a damsel's telephone voice, purer than a pure food label, and gentler than a Summer girl's sigh

"She hath eyes of velvet and a voice of silver and a disposition smoother than a Rolls-Royce on a profiteer's promises

"I know her to be the Ideal Wife, who is all things unto one man—even a charmer, a chum, an inspiration, a valet, a playmate, and a mystery

"Yet, alas, I find her less interesting than yesterday's newspaper, and more wearisome than last Summer's popular waltz-tune

"She thrilleth me no more than the message on a postcard, and I can NOT love her"

"For, so long have I controlled the muscles of my heart that now, they refuse to work! So long have I benumb-d my sentiments with the opiate of flirtation, and the wine of near-love and the false stimulant of experiment, that there is neither romance, nor an illusion, nor an emotion left within me—save one

"And that one is CURIOSITY!

"Verily, verily I am 'the man-who-understands-women.'

"Yet I shall never marry until I meet a woman whom I CANNOT understand!"

And in the air could be heard the weeping of angels and the triumphant laughter of cynics.

For lo, he that seeketh all his days to play with sky-rockets and bonfires shall never find warmth and brightness in the altar fire of Real Love.

Meals for Workers

By Loretto C. Lynch

WITH the advent of cooler days, what to serve should prove a matter of serious thought to the housekeeper. Not only must the food be appetizing, but it must be of a kind to satisfy the hunger of those who work hard. It must feel fit for the day's tasks.

The meat problem of the day is frequently of much concern, because the housewife does not know what a good cut is, but because it is sometimes difficult to provide suitable combinations and sufficient variety, or to find always a money. Thus she gets into a rut and her home [illegible] frequent better than the common restaurant—fails to be appreciated.

I shall always be glad that the hit-and-miss meal is always most expensive in the end. The planned meal is ever more satisfactory. Plan your dinners far ten days. This will prevent the same meats being served on successive Mondays or Tuesdays, when the plan is repeated

Suppose we plan dinners for those ten days. Let's start the plan on Monday. Thus the first card might be headed "First Day." In searching about the country for dishes particularly liked by hard-working men, I find this veal stew a favorite when properly prepared and served.

Wipe the bottom of the inside of the cook pot with a clove of garlic and then remove the garlic. Put in about 2 pounds of veal with some [illegible] cut up for stew. Add a couple of medium-sized onions, sliced. Cover with boiling water. Bring quickly to the boiling point and boil five minutes. Then reduce the heat and simmer for two hours. It may be necessary to add more water A teaspoonful of diced carrots and four medium-sized potatoes, pared and quartered, may be added an hour before the end of the cooking

Just before serving, remove bones and any bits of fat. If gravy is too thin, thicken with a little flour stirred in cold water. Sprinkle with finely chopped parsley just before serving.

It may be well to have something a bit crispier the next day. Plan a cream of tomato soup fried fresh fish with creamed potatoes, green peas and cold slaw Rice pudding with raisins would be a suitable dessert.

Cured beef and cabbage with potatoes and turnips, if a choice cut of beef is selected and freshened and then cooked very, very slowly is always a welcome dish for hard workers Freshening salt meat or fish simply consists in covering with cold water, which is slowly brought to the boiling point and then thrown away. The second water should be boiling Sometimes corned beef do not boil it. Allow about half an hour or longer for each pound. Toward the end add the cabbage, potatoes and turnips cut up.

Of course, each housewife will have to study her local market and the preferences of her family. But many a woman who shops carefully to save money on the main part of the meal, because she is working without plan, will often hastily send out and buy an expensive, ready-to-eat dessert because she has forgotten to prepare one.

The Rhyming Optimist

EVERYWHERE I wander by hither and yonder, I meet [illegible] who [illegible] and sighs, who like to paint [illegible] all night I will not treat them coldly but tell you quite bodily it runs in my family, too. Yes, we find it amusing, this pleasure at choosing and building a house just to suit, we quibble and squabble over cement or color, or where we shall put the coal chute We have long consultations about the locations of bedrooms and parlor and hall; and Wife wants me to tell her why I pass for a writer, but the kitchen's the best room of all.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

A Wife's Unhappiness

DEAR Miss FAIRFAX:

I have been married nine years and have two children. For the past year my husband has been paying much attention to a married woman who also has grown-up children. Since he met her he does not want to stay home evenings. She is very social. He has always been good to me. But now every time we go for a ride he asks this woman to go, and that hurts me, because he knows I do not like her. I asked him to drop her in a nice way, but he says he is not doing any harm. Am I asking too much for a wife? MRS. F. T.

THIS is of course a very painful situation. I wish I might console you by saying that it is easily remedied, but I fear it is not. So long as your husband does not respond to your gentle appeals, it looks as though you would have to wait for him to recover from his infatuation, for that is what it seems to be. I would advise you not to make your hostility to this woman too marked. It might even be better to make friends with her, if you could bring yourself to it. And in time your family life will no doubt become normal again

The Wrong Remedy

"I don't understand," said a young wife, "why it is that I have worry me to sleep. Here I have been sitting and singing to him for the last hour, and yet he keeps crying, and seems just as wide awake as ever."

"Well," said her husband thoughtfully, "I don't know, of course, and perhaps I am wrong, but it may be that baby has a musical ear"

Shame on Them.

PERHAPS there are a few mothers who do not know the virtues of Fletcher's Castoria. Perhaps there are a few who know that there are imitations on the market, and knowing this demand Fletcher's. It is to ALL motherhood then that we call attention to the numerous imitations and counterfeits that may be set before them.

It is to all motherhood everywhere that we ring out the warning to beware of the "Just-as-good". For over thirty years Fletcher's Castoria has been an aid in the upbuilding of our population; an aid in the saving of babies.

And yet there are those who would ask you to try something new. Try this. Try that. Even try the same remedy for the tiny, scarcely breathing, babe that you in all your robust womanhood would use for yourself. Shame on them.

Constant Pursuit of Pleasure Destroys Ideals of the Heroine in Clever Tale

"WHY, Franceline, of course!"

Both ladies turned in astonishment, while their glances traveled over her gown, which though sufficiently expensive, was not from Franceline.

"Rudy was certainly leaning hard on his fork tonight," said Mrs. Lightbody, in a confidential whisper, which was her slangy way of describing his familiar condition.

"Poor Irma, he does hang on!" said Mrs. Challoner.

"About whom?" said Mrs. Challoner, interested.

"Monte, of course."

"I don't see how she stands it. I shouldn't blame her for anything."

"What's Jack doing?" said Mrs. Lightbody, inquiring of the husband.

"How do I know?" said Mrs. Challoner, amiably.

"I say, Gladys, everything's poky around here," said Mrs. Lightbody, "what do you say to getting up a party for tomorrow? I can 'phone."

All at once, as though aware of an eavesdropper, she stopped and looked at Amy, who, unable to utter a word, had sat rigidly, completely isolated.

"What do they expect me to do?" she thought angrily. "Get up and move away?"

"We'll talk it over later," said Mrs. Challoner significantly.

At the moment when this public snubbing had become evident to every one, Mrs. Bracken rose and, approaching them, held out her hand to Amy, saying:

"Come over and talk to me a little. I want to really know you." This unexpected overture changed on the instant the attitude of all toward Mrs. Forrester. Mrs. Bracken came of a family which for five generations had never deviated from its ideals, producing men of distinction and women educated to be helpmates and mothers, whose conduct did not vary with the wind of fashion, but rested on the rock of self-respect—one of those families, the true moral aristocrats of America, who continue steadfast in their traditions, despite the torrential spread of a new polyglot society. She had the reputation of being difficult in her friendship and implacable in her judgments, but the entree to her house was a passport everywhere. "Here is a quiet corner," she said, and, still holding Amy's hand, she drew her to a window seat removed from the general conversation. "What a child you are! But you hold your ground beautifully!"

Filled With Tears

Amy's eyes filled with tears at the gentleness of her tone. She looked at her, and it seemed to her, as she met the clear, untroubled eyes, that she could have opened her heart to her on the instant. Mrs. Bracken perceived the emotion she had caused and gave her a little pressure of the hand.

"There, my dear. They are cats, but it is a tribute, you know."

Amy hardly heard what was said. She was gazing at her, carried away by an impulse she did not comprehend.

"I wish I could be your friend," she said abruptly.

"I feel that I could talk to you about anything," she said, quickly, "but I know to be your friend is a great privilege."

"Yes; I don't give my friendship easily, but I believe I could be a friend to you—a real friend."

"Oh, please. I wish you would, Mrs. Bracken; it would mean so much to me!"

"Then that's decided," she answered, with a smile. "This is not the place for a serious conversation, but some day we'll have one—if you wish it. Now tell me a little about yourself."

"Well, that is a compliment," said Monte Bracken when, the dancing having begun, they installed themselves in the conservatory for a breathing spell. "I never saw Claire go to any one like that before."

"The ladies were showing their claws, eh?"

"And I felt them!"

"I don't know whether I want to," she said, pensively. "Is it worth it? Tell me about your sister-in-law. She must be a very happy person."

He picked a sprig of ivy from a nearby bower, nodded and said, solemnly:

"Very—very happy!"

"I wish I were like her," she said, impulsively.

He smiled.

"Worried about my prophecy?"

She looked at him and then, drawing back into her chair, half covered her face with her fan, so that her blue eyes looked over at him, big and round and a little apprehensive.

She nodded.

The situation amused him, nor was it new. He looked at her with a slanted, quizzical glance and began slowly, with a mixture of impertinence and light good humor with which he knew how to make acceptable the most personal disquisition.

"Because you are destined to become a professionally beautiful woman, like Mrs. Challoner over there." He nodded toward the dancers, who flashed across the doorway and, with an assumption of impersonality, continued: "If I were seeking to compliment you, I would not put it in the future. You are not there yet. You are on the threshold. There is a whole art to acquire—or a profession, as you wish. That's what interests me about you—what is coming. To me, every beautiful woman is a potential tragedy."

"In what way?" she said, too interested to be self-conscious.

Studied Her With Interest

"A tragedy to those she consumes and exhausts." He drew back, studying her with more interest as he became interested in the subject. "You see, a beautiful woman—the professionally beautiful kind—quite a distinction, you know—is a social adventurer. She arrives as self-made men arrive; there is much in common between them." He smiled, adding, more lightly: "I suppose at the present moment, you have made all sorts of good resolutions and you believe in them. Futility! Throw them away! You are doomed, my dear Mrs. Forrester. Society needs you. You will rule it and be its slave. You don't believe me?"

"I should not let him be talking to me this way," she thought, "and yet it is quite impersonal." Her curiosity was aroused at the half-serious, half-humorous way in which he dissected her. Was he only amusing himself?

"Can't I have a will of my own?" she said.

"A what?"

"You will have fashions of conducts, fashions of thinking, but will—that does not exist! A professionally beautiful woman must always be in style. She dresses, acts and thinks as other women do—because her life is to compete with them, and to compete with them she must attack them on their own territory. You are not convinced? Look at the dear things tonight." He reassured himself with a glance as to the modesty of his companion's decollete and indicated, with a wave of his hand, the daring shoulders and throats of the dancers, adding: "Women, women, you are a perpetual delight! You are unfathomable. If you had suggested, five years ago, to any woman present that she would come to dress like this, how indignant she would have been! You may have the same feeling tonight—but next year you will do what Irma and Mrs. Challoner do, because they do it."

"Pardon me—question of style, and everything else will be a question of style. The dear ladies who tried to snub you tonight will become your inseparable friends the moment they see they cannot down you. And you, on your part, will give more time to them, your dearest rivals, than to your own family. You will have a sort of collective morality. You find Irma surrounded by a collection of young fetch-and-carrys. You'll establish your own brigade or try to steal hers from her. You'll flirt as Irma flirts. You'll dare as Irma dares. You'll break the conventions as Irma breaks them."

"Why always Irma?"

"Oh, Irma is the perfect type of a society model. She has wit, she has taste, and she has a thorough instinct for avoiding the ice where it begins to grow thin. She is thoroughly convinced of the innocence of all her intentions—in fact, she is quite capable of founding a school of modern social philosophy."

"Aren't you making us out very immoral persons?"

Profoundly Immoral

"Immoral? Of course," he said cheerfully. "You are all profoundly immoral, but not in the sense you attach. You are immoral because you are irresponsible, because you are not really necessary. Immoral in another sense—no! That's the worst and the best of you. You avoid great emotions. They are too disturbing, and you can't take the time in society. You seek safe little emotions—to be constantly amused. The strongest emotion Irma has is jealousy of Gladys Challoner. They spend their lives attacking each other, poaching on each other's preserves. They outrival each other in display; they are indispensable to each other; they call each other up on the telephone every morning and tear each other to pieces every night. Do you think any man can compete with the strength of such an attachment?" He stopped, laughed as a man who verges on an epigram, pleased at his discovery. "Gladys is a moral lightning-rod to Irma—it's what keeps her moral, in the ordinary sense of the word."

Womanlike, while listening to this diatribe, delivered half playfully, half seriously, she was seeking the personal explanation. Was he still in love with Irma Dellabarre? At the thought that this might be the reason of the satire, she felt a sharp pinch of annoyance which caused her to say acidly,

"And this is what I am to become? Thank you. You have a very bad opinion of me."

"I? Not at all! You'll see—society needs you. You will be one of its martyrs. You must be admired, imitated, and torn to pieces regularly, or society would be a very dull place. In a year or two, when I come back again, I shall hope to be your very good friend. Who knows, when next we meet, I may be foolish enough to lose my head!"

"You know, I should be very angry at you, but you have the most amusing way of saying the most impossible things. Tell me, why do you talk to me like this? Is it just to amuse yourself?"

He looked at her and said, solemnly:

"I am prophesying, you know!"

"So, in your eyes I am doomed?"

"There will be compensations," he said, with a smile.

She dropped her fan for a moment and raised her eyes, meditative, solemn, disturbed, in a long glance of inquiry.

"I believe you are more than half serious!"

"Serious—never! I never would be so impertinent as to tell the truth in a serious manner."

"But if I—permit you," she added, after a slight hesitation.

"Very well, then. I'll warn you—you can't play the game like Irma. If you have a spark of real emotion, it is dangerous to feed on sensation, even little sensations. They who live by sensations shall perish by sensations! A man with a conscience and a woman with a heart have no place here! In the end"— He hesitated a moment; his eyes met hers and looked down through them into the secret caverns with an impetuous boldness he had not shown before—"yes, in the end, there will be trouble. Ah, not just now—later, when you wake up."

"You don't think I am now, then," she said, avoiding his glance.

Long Pause Occurred

"No; I do not."

There was a long pause, during which she brought the soft, undulating feathers of her fan back again across her face.

"Are you really leaving soon?" she said, presently.

"Yes; I am going to take up my post in Madrid immediately."

"You are really a terrifying person to talk to," she said. "I don't know whether I'd care to repeat this experience."

"If I have told you the truth," he said, quietly, "I have tried to keep to generalities."

She sprang up, genuinely glad for the interruption, startled at the intimacy which had grown over them. She felt annoyed, angry at herself, for the ease with which she had revealed herself, resenting also the impersonal quality of his curiosity, so utterly devoid of any tribute to her. No one had ever approached her in that attitude.

"He thinks I am only a child," she thought, impatiently.

She determined, she did not know exactly why, that she would give him no further opportunity. When, later in the evening, he came up to ask her to dance, she refused.

IX.

IT was well after two when the Forresters went to their rooms. The maid, dozing in the hall, sprang up hastily. Amy sent her away after the mystifying process of unhooking had been accomplished, and slipping into a negligee, vibrantly awake, stood at the ivy-clad window looking down on the spectacle of the departing cars; the awaking throb of the motors, the sweeping, monstrous eyes searching the night, the will-o'-the-wisp flights across the countryside.

The echo of many compliments was pleasant in her ear, the consciousness not only of the evening's success but of all that the future would bring hung in her imagination like a disturbing perfume. She found herself recalling many things Monte Bracken had said to her and admitting their justice. She had seen her worth in the eyes of the women, feminine mirrors, which told more than the lip flattery of the man. But she was still an amateur, as Bracken had said, and she found herself thinking of Irma Dellabarre, of her poise, her exquisite taste, the charm of her manner, the ease of her silences, the naturalness and elegance of her movements.

"If I were a man, I should be crazy about her," she said to herself. "I wonder if he really isn't."

"No, indeed!"

She left the window. Andrew wandered in, a cigar in hand. His lawn tie was pulled loose. He had thrown off his coat and vest, preparing to retire. He was in flowered suspenders, roan-bud on a satin background. The slight of these suspenders affected her disagreeably—the disillusioning intimacy of marriage.

"Didn't you bring a dressing gown?" she asked, irritably.

"No—why?"

"You'll catch cold after dancing," she said, hastily, surprised herself at this first critical impulse toward her husband.

"I did very little dancing," he said, shortly. "I must take some lessons to keep up. I didn't know you were so fond of it."

He started to light the cigar, took a puff and stopped guiltily, quenching it.

"I beg your pardon. I'm absent-minded tonight." He looked at her with shining eyes. "Very proud of you this evening, Yum Yum."

"I'm glad of that," she said, ashamed of her annoyance.

"The prettiest there," he said, nodding. He stopped before her, his head on one side, his eyes half closed, studying the dainty figure.

"What is it? Did I do something wrong?"

He took up a scarf and, freeing the negligee, draped it about her shoulders. The decollette thus exposed was in the manner of Mrs. Challoner.

"What a boy you are!" she said, with sparkling eyes.

When he had contemplated the delicate slope of her shoulders, the whiteness of the skin, the slender and graceful column of the neck, he said:

"I know it! Not one can touch you! As for Mrs. Challoner, we'll settle her!" he added, proudly, even defiantly.

"So the cerise gown—?"

"Mrs. Dellabarre dresses beautifully," he interrupted, smiling guiltily. "Young lady, some new dresses at once!" He looked at her seam. "Mrs. Challoner, indeed!" he said, indignantly.

Following his gesture, she turned to the mirror. The daring of the deep decollete he had arranged, the flaming scarf playing over the soft slopes of her velvety skin, brought to her eyes a glow of pleasure. She stood staring at the prophetic figure which confronted her.

In a Brown Study

He had flung himself down in an armchair, plunged in a brown study, so absorbed that, forgetful of the past offence, he had again lit his cigar.

"What now?" she asked, surprised at his unusual mood. The satin suspenders, worked in rosebuds, stood before her eyes wherever she looked. What had possessed him to get them? Other men like Monte Bracken, would never appear at such a disadvantage. He put his hand up as though to open the collar which cut into his neck.

"If he does, I shall scream," she thought.

But he contented himself with an easing of the corners. He blew out a great smoke ring.

"It's quite a revelation—coming here," he said, speaking to himself. "What do you think, it can cost to run this place?"

"Heavens! How do I know?"

"You like it?" he said, looking at her fixedly.

"Nothing second chop here," he said, wagging his head. "When we go back—we'll make a bonfire of what we've got."

"But Andrew—"

"It's trash. This has opened my eyes. Make a friend of Mrs. Dellabarre. She can teach you everything. Look at the way she runs her house, the order, the charm of it! I don't know how she does it—but I'm going to learn. Yes, sir! I'm going to have a home like this."

"Andrew, but how can we?"

"Why, all we need is a million," he said, unable to resist a touch of that humorous braggadocio which is the test of the American parvenu. "Beat and damn the expense! Amy, do you want it—say the word—you shall have it!"

Years before her father had dedicated his existence to her in almost the same words!

"Yes—but—"

"It means a few years plugging, but, by Jove, it's worth it!" he said, boisterously. The feeling of his own unimportance in whatever sphere was one his mounting nature could not tolerate, and the lesson of the evening had been a hard one. He rose with the dogged fighting face of the old athlete. "Look here; we're going to enjoy life to the fullest, you and I. We're going to have everything life can give—and we're going to have the best. Andrew B. Forrester is going to surprise a few people around these parts!"

"You've decided to accept Mr. Gunther's offer!"

"Within ten minutes after I got here," he said, beaming. "What! Aren't you pleased?"

"Yes, yes; I suppose so—if you want it. You take my breath away," she said, soberly. She could not have told herself why, but the prospect frightened her. It seemed to her that she was dragging him out of his existence into a world she coveted.

"My, how serious we are!"

"But this afternoon, Andrew, you said we had enough," she began.

"This afternoon, my dear girl. I didn't know what money was worth!"

Tackle Other Side

"If you go, I go with you," she said, impulsively.

"You'll do nothing of the kind," he said, emphatically. "You begin the fight here, and I'll tackle the other side." He caught her up and swung her to his shoulder, despite her laughing protests. "There! People are going to be mighty proud to know Mrs. Andrew B. Forrester!"

He set her down with sudden gravity and said, joyfully, what, many times later, he was to recall with bitterness:

"And this morning I was satisfied! Fool that I was!"

An hour later, he was still awake, absorbed in dreams of ambition, filled with zest of new worlds to conquer.

Amy, in the next room, heard him turning in his bed, mumbling to himself. She found it difficult to rest. Long after she heard his heavy breathing, she remained awake. The haunted silence of the country night drew her out to the sighing of drifting leaves and sent her imagination wandering into the future. She felt almost as though she had committed a crime. What was this new world into which she was drawing him? Would it bring them together or insensibly separate them? Something in her better nature cried out strongly:

"He is making a mistake. This is not the way. He ought to take from you—make you follow him!"

All at once she sprang up and went to his bedside.

"Andrew!"

She said it softly, once, twice and then turned away. Back in her bed, she wondered at her emotion. Why was she afraid?

"No one could ever be so kind," she said to herself, resolutely. "He will always hold me by that!"

Her rest was fitful, disturbed by the echoes of catchy music which turned about her. All night she seemed to be dancing. Toward morning, she fell into a heavy sleep, in which she had a curious dream.

She was in the midst of a great ballroom and, whirling about her were her father, Fid, Uncle Tom, Mr. Dellabarre, every one she knew. She saw Andrew dancing with Mrs. Challoner, dancing very heavily, tripping and hopelessly muddled in his steps until Mrs. Challoner stopped suddenly and exclaimed:

"How absurd for you to ask me to dance! Why, you don't know the first thing about it!" Every woman that Andrew invited to dance shook her head and laughed. All at once, to her horror, she perceived that he was in suspenders, white satin suspenders, worked in rosebuds!

Then she was dancing with him, piloting him through the swinging crowd. At first he stumbled, and she heard a titter in the crowd. When she looked round, they were alone on the glistening floor.

"Every one's stopped dancing," he said, nervously.

"Don't stop, go on!" she said, angrily. "They shan't make you ridiculous!" Little by little his awkwardness disappeared, his steps became smoother. Some one began to applaud. "Faster"; she whispered, "faster!"

His arm became stronger. She no longer piloted him. It was his hand which guided her deftly. She was astonished at the rhythm and harmony of his movements.

"But it's wonderful—Andrew is a wonderful dancer! Why haven't I noticed it before?" she said.

"You!"

"You see."

"But why have you come?"

"What question?"

"Would you do it over again?"

Then every one seemed to be rushing about them; the great chandeliers overhead were swaying like a surging sea, the music thundered in her ears and she woke with a cry.

Andrew was in the room in a great coat, ready to leave. It was 10 o'clock.

"Yes, yes."

"What frightened you?"

"I fell downstairs or something or other," she said, hastily.

X.

"I've ordered the darling's breakfast up here, and we can be as lazy as we want," she said, embracing Amy affectionately. "Kitty has had a telephone from New York and wants us to run up this afternoon for a spree. No; don't get up. You're a picture just as you are. What a fascinating bed-cap!"

"I'm afraid I've woefully late," said Amy, making friends with the Pekinese.

"Late—not a bit! I got up with the chickens," said Irma, who had been called at 10. "My dear, it's wonderful that Mon Amour goes to you like that. He hardly ever does. He's never even accepted Rudy. Poor Rudy, he hates so to be left alone at!"

Amy, in company with all Irma's acquaintances, could never be brought to see Mr. Dellabarre under the affectionate sobriquet of "Rudy." But Irma's public attitude toward her husband was a thing of mystery.

At this moment, the maid arrived with the three breakfasts. Mrs. Dellabarre examined with maternal solicitude the cream and bread destined for the favorite and held a consultation as to the menu of the day.

"Louise, tell Gervais that he has been giving Mon Amour too much red meat lately. Yes; you have been eating like a little pig," she added, shaking the nose finger at the blinking Mon Amour, "and your little tum-tum won't stand it, no it won't. No more tournedos for a while, Louise. A little sweetbread for lunch, and be sure it's cooked enough—for, tomorrow, some chicken livers. He'll be furious, I know, but he has the most delicate digestion," she added to Amy, "because he is a little prince, he is!"

"Miss Irma wants to know if you'd like to see the children," said Louise, "because they're to go to their grandma's."

"Of course, I do. But not now—tell them to come down after lunch." said Mrs. Dellabarre, who had Mon Amour on her lap and was coaxing him to accept his cracker. "My dear, he's the most jealous thing! If I kiss the children, it sends him into a perfect fury."

"You must get one at once. They're so affectionate! I'll select one for you," said Mrs. Dellabarre, who was never satisfied until she had imposed on her friends her doctor, her grocer, her dressmaker and her dog fancies. "It's really astonishing he takes to you," she added, as though, by that, Amy had taken new value in her eyes. "But you are so dainty and pretty, it's no wonder. You know, I wasn't prepared to like you at all."

COPPERS WEAK IN BOSTON

Decline in Metal Prices Affects Mining Share Valuations; Curb Prices Ease Off

The Boston market was still irregular at the opening and during the morning showed no variation of consequence. Gains and losses were about equally balanced. Trading was of moderate volume and as narrow as usual. Lows for the year were touched by Osceola and Simms Magneto. Calumet & Hecla continued to shrink, selling at 700 on the second transaction. This is its lowest in about twenty-five years. Coppers were heavy, Alaska declining a point. A statement from New York is that lead metal has sold at 14½ cents a pound. Large quantities can be obtained under 13 cents. It is also said "there is little interest in the market. Sales are few. The market is apparently seeking a new level from which trading can be resumed with confidence."

Pacific Mills advanced a point and fractional gains were made by American Woolen preferred, Boston Elevated, Ventura, Carson Hill and Mexican Investment. Adverse issues to sustain small losses were American Telephone, International Nickel, Greenfield Tap, Swift & Co., Swift International and Gray & Davis.

CURB PRICES LOWER.

Curb prices ruled lower at the opening, the market having a heavier tone than at the close of the preceding session. It improved somewhat during the morning, but did not become strong. Merrimac Development was the only early feature. It began a cent a share lower and to 6, which was off four cents at 24 cents.

At the end of an hour Boston & Montana was off one cent at 40 cents and First National was up two cents at 3 cents. Allied Mining had recovered its early loss. It was a very quiet market.

Motors Improve and Some Rails Show Strength; Oils Quiet; Trading Quiet

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks rallied strong in New York at noon, prices being not far below the highest level of the morning. Motors were the second-hour feature and rails continued strong, most rails were up and oils were steady. Delaware, Lackawanna & Western made the largest gain, advancing six points. Other notable strong issues were Chandler, Pierce Arrow, Studebaker, Baldwin, Bethlehem B, Crucible, Republic Steel, Reading, New York Central, Tobacco Products and Texas & Pacific. They were up from one to four at their highest.

Trading was quiet, first hour transactions approximating 125,000 shares. Call money opened at 9 per cent. There was not much change in foreign exchange rates, opening quotations being demand sterling $3.49 up 4-cent, francs 9.67, unchanged; lire 9.96, unchanged, marks .0117, unchanged, .0002. Canada dollars demand .9650.

EARLY TREND UPWARD.

Prices were irregular as to changes at the opening, but the trend was upward and the forward movement continued until the market became strong. Gains were the rule for fifteen minutes before the advance showed signs of halting. Steels led the advance, with Republic and Bethlehem making the best showing at the start. Rails were mixed at the opening, but joined in the upturn. New York Central sold at the highest for 1920, and Reading, Southern Pacific and Northern Pacific advancing the most. Equipments followed carriers. Oils were quiet and showed less class strength. Motors were firm, but moved slowly. Chandler was an exception, being one of the strongest stocks on the list. Coppers continued to decline. Weak ones included Utah, Kennecott, Anaconda and Cosmo. It was reported that the red metal was being offered below 17 cents a pound. Small gains were made by rubbers and tobaccos. Sugars were inactive, but American Beet Sugar went up two points on one sale. At the end of an hour the market had grown quiet, but prices were still up. The borrowing demand for stocks was light after the exchange closed yesterday. Nine per cent was asked for the industrials generally and 8 per cent. for rails.

EMPLOYES BUY STOCK.

American Telephone is one of the big corporations which is encouraging its employes to invest in its stock. President H. B. Thayer says regarding this:

"Another interesting development in the entrance in the last four years of a large body of employe stockholders. Under an easy payment plan which the company announced to employes January 1, 1915, and an extension to this plan in March, 1916, over 22,400 of those purchasing shares continues to hold stock. On December 1, 1919, a further offer of stock was made under which any employe of at least one year's service could purchase a limited number of shares paying for them at the rate of $2 per share per month. This offer has proved very popular; 46,126 employes in August, 1920, were making payments on 134,130 shares, an average of four shares each.

"It is estimated that 25 per cent. of the stockholders will be employes and 25 per cent. of the employes will be stockholders when the employes now purchasing stock finish paying their instalments."

Not long ago, a trade paper made the statement that six billion dollars should be spent by the railroads in this country for new equipment over the next several years, but if equipment companies get orders aggregating only half of this sum it will mean extreme prosperity for them for a long time to come.

It is interesting to know which equipment companies are in position to prosper to the greatest extent, so we have prepared a survey of the equipment situation, having analyzed the present financial status of the more important concerns, with the outlook for the future business, and this survey appears in our current

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

In view of the statements in the press which have associated the names of Mr. John R. Poole and the J. R. Poole Company and Mr. Charles Ponzi, I can state to all who may be interested that our investigations as receivers have disclosed no evidence whatsoever that either Mr. Poole or the Poole Company was in any way connected with any business which Mr. Ponzi or the so-called Securities Exchange Company was conducting. There was an agreement for the sale to Mr. Ponzi of stock in said Poole Company, but under arrangement between Mr. Poole and the receivers, confirmed by the Court, that stock has been returned to Mr. Poole.

THE CHASE NATIONAL BANK OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK, TRUSTEE

Further information in regard to this issue of notes is given in a letter of Mr. Julius Rosenwald, President of the Company, dated October 8, 1920, from which we summarize as follows:

THESE notes are the direct obligations of Sears, Roebuck and Co. and constitute the only funded debt of the Company.

The proceeds of this issue will be applied to the reduction of current liabilities thereby not increasing present indebtedness.

Net earnings after deducting all interest charges but before providing for Federal taxes for the four years ended December 31, 1919, average $20,926,692, or about six times the maximum annual interest charges of $3,500,000 on the notes. The net earnings for the six months ended June 30, 1920, after deducting all interest charges but before providing for Federal taxes amount to $15,447,285.

The trust agreement requires the maintaining of quick assets equal to at least one and one-half times all liabilities including these notes, and provides that no mortgage or other lien, except purchase money mortgages, may be placed upon any of the assets of the Company.

We offer these notes when, as and if issued and received by us, subject to prior sale and to the approval of counsel

$16,500,000, due October 15, 1921, at 99.20 and interest, to yield about 7.85%
$16,500,000 due October 15, 1922, at 98.72 and interest, to yield about 7.70%
$17,000,000, due October 15, 1923, at 98.41 and interest, to yield about 7.60%

It is expected that temporary notes or interim receipts will be ready for delivery on or about October 25, 1920. All legal matters in connection with this issue will be approved by Rushmore, Bisbee & Stern and Moses & Singer, of New York, and Arthur B. Schaffner, of Chicago.

REPEAL EXCESS PROFIT TAX

Otto H. Kahn, New York Banker, Speaks to Boston Commerce Chamber

The excess profit tax should be abolished and the scale of surtaxes should be revised downwards, declared Otto H. Khan, the New York banker, in speaking before the Massachusetts Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Kahn, who talked on "Some Suggestions on Tax Revision" said in part:

"The excess profit tax should be abolished or essentially modified, and some other method devised to tax corporate profits.

NOT OPPOSED TO THEORY.

"I may mention that I am not opposed to the theory of an excess profits tax. On the contrary, I believe that theory has much to recommend it. But such a tax, even though it were greatly improved—as it can be—over the crude system of ours, is of necessity so complex, so liable in its effects to impede trade and burden the public, and requires so competent and perfected and steady a machinery of administration, that for practical purposes, it is not, I believe, adapted to and not satisfactorily workable in this country.

"At the same time that the excess profit tax is dealt with, the extreme scale of surtaxes, which actually defeats its own purpose, should be revised downward. The abolition or revision of our generally condemned excess profit tax would not accomplish the purpose in view, unless at the same time the extreme rates of individual surtaxes are reduced.

UNDULY TENDER.

"Indeed, to abolish the excess profit tax and leave corporate profits subject only to the existing net profits tax of 10 per cent. would not only affront a large body of public opinion as being unduly tender to corporate capital, but would be paralleling the uneven incidence of taxation, which is one of the characteristic errors of the existing revenue measure.

"Under the present law, corporations pay no surtaxes and individual businesses pay no excess profit taxes. Roughly speaking, the excess profits tax, on corporate earnings, may be regarded as the equivalent of the surtaxes on the earnings of individuals engaged in business.

"And, clearly, there ought to be such an equivalent. It is certainly not the intention of the public or the aim of the law to give an undue advantage to corporate as against individual activity. As near as possible, taxation should be so arranged that corporations and individual business are taxed to equal effect.

SOCIAL USE OF INCOME.

"Consideration should be given to the question whether there should not be a revision of the theory of taxation, in the sense of basing it not merely on income, but also on the social use made of income. If a man has an income of, say, $200,000, whereof he spends $50,000 for his own and his family's living and other expenses, and saves, i. e., directly or indirectly, uses constructively the remaining $150,000, he ought to be subject to a lesser tax than the man equally in possession of an income of $200,000 who spends the whole or larger part of that sum on extravagant living.

"Many people are inclined to advocate a differentiation in the rate of taxation as between earned and unearned incomes—the latter term indicating, generally speaking, income from invested funds as contrasted with wages, salaries, fees and profits from active pursuit of business.

"The argument is plausible and in theory just. But I am satisfied that in practice such a differentiation would not work, apart from adding another complication to the already excessively complicated machinery of the income tax. If applied to people with moderate incomes from investments, it would be a great hardship, and it is hard enough for such people to make both ends meet, as it is.

EASY TO CIRCUMVENT.

"If applied to large incomes, it would not only be easy to circumvent to a great extent, but it would again enact the vice of our present taxation of penalizing thrift and discouraging investment other than in tax-exempt securities.

"The national value of saving, large and small, the importance of affording to it every duly consistent consideration, the necessity of a free flow of investment capital into corporate securities and other business ventures, the harm to the community at large or impending or diverting that fructifying current, cannot be overemphasized. We may be following a superficially unimpeachable theory in enacting certain measures, but if the result is to deter investment we shall indulge in a most damaging practice.

"The differentiation which, in my opinion, should be made and which it is entirely practicable to make, is not between earned and unearned income, but between the socially advantageous and the socially undesirable use of income, i. e., betwen thrift and waste."

NAME 135 CAFE MEN IN PROBE

Called to Explain High-Priced Food at Conference Monday by U. S. Atty. Gallagher

U. S. Attorney Daniel J. Gallagher, as a result of his State-wide investigation into excessive prices exacted for food in numerous eating places throughout the State, has invited more that 135 managers and proprietors of restaurant and lunch rooms to attend a conference next Monday morning in the Federal building, where they will be given an opportunity to explain their side of the food-price question.

Besides these managers and proprietors the Federal attorney has invited the representatives of numerous hotels in this city to attend a similar conference next Tuesday in the Federal building, where they will have an opportunity to explain food prices exacted by them.

Attorney Gallagher is sending the following letter to the 135 proprietors and managers of restaurants and lunch rooms in this State who have been invited to attend Monday's conference:

"As you are probably aware I am making an investigation of prices charged in eating places in the district of Massachusetts.

"Rightly or otherwise the public seems to believe that the prices of food are unjustly high and that the proprietors of establishments such as yours are exacting excessive and unreasonable profits.

"In order that you may have an opportunity to present your side of this vital question you are hereby invited to attend a conference to be held Monday, October 18, at 11 o'clock in the Equity Court room, Postoffice Building, Devonshire and Milk streets, Boston."

The 115 restaurants and lunch rooms, whose proprietors and managers have been invited to attend the conference, are located in Boston. The others are located in various parts of the State.

WELLESLEY FIELD DAY CHANGED TO OCT. 30

The date of the Wellesley College annual field day has been changed from November 6 to October 30. Tentative squads for the various teams have been posted and the final teams will be announced Saturday. Indoor work begins November 8. The size of this year's freshman class will make the events of double interest this year. Inspired by the World's Series, the Wellesley baseball nine is exhibiting marvelous skill. The competition to make the four-crew squads, especially the 1924 boat, is causing some ambitious strokes to practice with broom handles in the seclusion of thei rooms.

$100,000 JEWEL THEFT AT CLUB

Robber Ransacks Fashionable Sleepy Hollow Resort While Guests Slumber

New York, Oct. 14.—Working with amazing stealth and swiftness a thief ransacked the rooms of the fashionable Sleepy Hollow Country Club at Scarborough-on-the-Hudson, and stole about $100,000 in jewels.

There were about fifty guests at the club, all prominent socially, and while they slumbered peacefully the thief did his work.

Mrs. C. C. Chapman, wife of a New York banker, was the heaviest loser, a necklace, valued at $60,000 disappeared.

It is thought the thief entered through a window over the front porch, although the window is more than thirty feet from the ground and could be reached only by climbing a pillar.

Inextricably Interwoven

Uncle Sam Will Imitate Alexander

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

Long ago, when Woodrow Wilson was "the Government of the United States" and Congress was the messenger boy and the people nothing, Mr. Wilson said to a big crowd at Carnegie Hall that he would bring back the Peace Treaty and the Peace League "so closely interwoven that one could not be separated from the other."

It was said with pride, with defiance, and the boast was made good.

He came back, as advertised, with the Peace League and the League of Nations so closely interwoven that, with Mr. Wilson in the White House, the United States could not have peace unless it signed a league that would have put the United States, as Mr. Wilson himself has expressed it, "under an absolutely compelling moral obligation" to abandon peace and go to war again across the water whenever England and her six votes and her subservient allies might choose to order it.

It was an ingenious piece of inextricable interweaving. The wonderful nest of the Baltimore oriole, or the more wonderful nest of the halcyon, compare feebly as an inextricable interweaving job with the job that Mr. Wilson did in Europe.

Mr. Wilson, however, forgot, and so did good old John Bull, whose pleasant face you see on this page, a little story about Alexander the Great and the Gordian knot.

The Gordian knot was so inextricably interwoven that all effort to untie it had been vain, when Alexander came along.

That is exactly what Uncle Sam is doing with the inextricable interweaving of Woodrow's combined War League and Treaty of Peace.

He will have none of the War League of Nations, and he will make his own peace in his own way and in very short order, as soon as the 4th of next March and the new administration confer upon this nation freedom from the ingenious inextricable weaver.

Too bad for old John Bull, the hurry up salesman. Everything seemed ready, the goods were to be delivered, five thousand millions in cash, had gone as a starter. Three million men had been sent across the ocean. There were many millions and many men left in the United States. Here you see John Bull, first-class salesman, saying to Cousin Sam, "Just sign on the dotted line, Sam, that's all."

There will be no signature on that dotted line. The inextricable weaver has woven in vain, and the inextricably interwoven mess will all go overboard on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November next.

But it certainly was very able inextricable interweaving, while it lasted.

A Brisk Salesman

John Bull has been in business for a long time. He knows how to rush things through. He knows that the main thing is to get the name of the customer written out on the dotted line.

With that done, that's all there is to it.

If the Democratic administration had had its way, the name would have been signed long ago. Fortunately that was prevented. Uncle Sam has had time to think, and if you know him you know that the dotted line will never be signed.

France and England

And Something About Russia

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

France and England, as was inevitable, are drifting farther and farther apart.

The interest of England demands flourishing trade all over the world; the interest of France demands, according to French public opinion, permanent crippling of Germany, and the collection by force or otherwise from Russia of thirty thousand million francs foolishly lent to the Czar which Lenin will never pay.

If France persists in keeping Germany a helpless cripple and continuing war on Russia for the sake of money that she will never get, England cannot do business with Germany.

For hundreds of years the natural attitude of France toward England and vice versa has been one of suspicion and dislike and this war has not changed it.

All the more reason for getting out of a league which might make us, very soon, wonder whether to side with our English or our French friends.

If reports be true, very likely they are not, Lenin finds himself in the position of many a Roman Emperor, and of others possessing power based on a fighting army. First, the army gives power to the ruler. Then the army realizes that the power is within ITSELF and IT rules, making of the ruler a puppet. The story is that Lenin executed the first committee of twelve from the army, listened to the second, and then took the army's order; however, we cannot believe much, if any, of the "news" sent from countries opposed to Russia.

The statement that "Russian middle class is coming back" you may, however, believe implicitly. The turn may not yet be begun, but the "middle class" is coming back. It ALWAYS comes back.

The whole human race is like one body, with head, feet and arms. The head is the GOVERNING intelligence. The feet are the working group carrying the load, the hands are the middle class that obey the orders of the head, take care of it, watch it, put a hat or crown on it and supply the feet with shoes.

Always when the dust settles, you find the head again active, the hands active, the feet carrying the load.

Great Britain's warning to Russia that she will sink any Russian submarine in sight makes your mind deal with the new element in a revolution and a nation like Russia "running wild," not recognizing usual international obligations.

The submarine and the flying machine can give to Russia the power of invisible attack, beneath the water and from above the clouds. England knows it and does not mean to trifle with the unpleasant possibilities involved.

Young Theodore Roosevelt, replying to criticism from Mr. Cox, makes an excellent point, previously made by Senator Harding. "This nation would be bound to consider a moral obligation just as binding as a legal obligation."

We do not want this nation to enter the league, if it would be LEGALLY bound to send its men to fight in foreign wars on the order of a foreign council.

And we do not want this nation to go into such a league with a mental reservation about "Welshing" on a moral obligation.

Spain masses soldiers on the border of Portugal. They may fight and they may not. Probably they will not. Would you like to be in a league that could force this country to supply men and money for Spanish-Portuguese fighting in case it happened? And don't you know that if Spain and Portugal or any other country or nation felt inclined to fight that the prospect of getting the United States to pay the bill and supply the men would be a first-class fighting inducement to the nation that could persuade the foreign council to make the United States take up its quarrel?

"Hard Boiled" Smith Said to Have Been Protected

We like the tone of Professor Hart's letter to Congressman Dallinger as much as we like the action of Congressman Dallinger which called forth the letter.

Mr. Dallinger had telegraphed to Secretary of War Baker protesting against the parole of "Hard Boiled" Smith, an officer in our Expeditionary Forces, who had been found guilty of barbarous conduct toward American boys who had been imprisoned in France for technical offences, generally for presuming to go to Paris where only officers were allowed to go.

The distinction between officers and men in the American army in France has always sat poorly upon the democratic instincts of the American people. It was quite notorious that some of our highest officers vied with the German officer class in attempts to "lord" it over the men, in unhappy contrast with the conduct of French officers.

It may have been necessary to prevent the rank and file of our army from going to Paris when off duty and it may have been proper to have allowed the officers to go there. But violation of the order certainly ought not to have subjected the boys to the tortures to which they were subjected at the prison camp under the immediate control of Lieutenant Smith.

From the very beginning there was an evident disposition on the part of somebody highee up to protect Smith. He was tried only upon the less severe charges and his sentence was considered on all hands light even upon the charges brought.

It has been generally believed that the man really responsible was a favorite of the President's and an officer in his household before the war. His promotion from captain to general was as sensational as promotions of favorites generally are and he is said to have a penchant more for provost marshal duty than for actual military service.

Senator Borah Is a Speaker Who Deals in Facts

We are glad that Senator Borah is returning to New England to speak in New Hampshire. We are always glad when men like Senator Borah come anywhere in New England. They leave us information which is invaluable to us.

We want less of the flamboyant orators and more of the men who collect the facts, study them and present them so that we understand them, at least from the speaker's point of view. We want less declamation and more argument.

We shall never profit a great deal from discussion on the public platform until we go back to the old-fashioned joint debates where declamations has to take a back seat and facts and argument come into their own. In the absence, however, of the joint debate a man whose intellectual self-respect requires him to address an audience as if he were to be corrected immediately by an opponent for misstatements and sophistical arguments is the most valuable man in our public discussions. When he combines with these virtues the arts of the declaimer properly subordinated to the more robust qualities of argument, we have a perfect teacher upon the public platform. Such a man is Senator Borah.

More Truth Than Poetry

Our Obsolete Anthem

By S. E. KISER

The President of the United States and other advocates of the League of Nations declare that the sentiment "America first" is obnoxious and smacks of Prussianism. They insist that our interest in the countries of the old world are of more importance than our interest in America.

MY country, once of thee,
I dared to sing.
Now I must put aside
My former love and pride;
Let reason be applied—
God save the king.

AMERICA must not Remain first in my thought;
That would be wrong.
I'll have to cease to stand
First for my native land;
It's time to broaden and Revise my song.

I MUSTN'T love thy rills,
Thy rocks, nor templed hills
Too ardently;
Let England, Greece and Spain
And Alsace and Lorraine
Mean more to me than Maine
And Tennessee.

TO praise my country most
Would be a Prussian boast,
So let me sing,
Not of the Pilgrim's pride,
Nor how my fathers died,
But, loyal, true and tried:

TIME BRINGS MANY CHANGES

Once it was the Landing of the Pilgrims. Now it it seems to be a case of "landing" on the Pilgrims.

THE GOOD OLD DAYS

Do you remember those halcyon days when fifty per month was the price of your rent,
And a man was subjected to scorn and disgraise if his profits were fifteen or twenty per cent.?

A HIGHER CALLING

I lift my hat to Henry Hicks;
He used to preach and pray.
But now, for laying several bricks,
He's getting ten per day.

Heart Proved a Dynamo

PERHAPS the most important recent discovery about the human heart is that it generates a large amount of electricity of its own. In fact, science finds, there are three distinct currents running from the heart. By making a record of these currents, called an electro-cardiogram, it is possible to know positively whether a heart is healthy or what form of irregularity affects it.

Dr. Louis Faugeres Bishop, professor of heart and circulatory diseases at Fordham University, explains the remarkable services which are performed by the new electric recording instruments in diagnosing heart conditions and showing how they should be treated. A special article, with interesting photographs and diagrams, appears in the Magazine Section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser on Sunday, explaining the salient points of this discovery.

The original father of all cats has been run to earth. He lived 15,000,000 years ago, and was a vicious, predatory monster. At the time our tiny, tailed and furry ancestors were slowly evolving into the men and women of today. Read the Boston Sunday Advertiser's feature article on the surprising ancestry of the house cat, appearing in the Magazine Section on Sunday.

An American girl has passed through an experience which finds an equal only in the tales of the Arabian Nights. Miss Marta Sanville, of Newport and Cuba, became engaged to the son and heir of the Rajah of Manipur. The prince, willing to sacrifice much for his newest love, had agreed to dispose of his harem, and live with his American bride in Western style. This displeased one of his former wives. She poisoned him on his betrothal night with diamond dust and a deadly drug. The story appears in the Magazine Section on Sunday.

Short skirts have caused at last one divorce suit. The abbreviated costume of fashion and pretty Mrs. Joseph W. Bailey's liking for it have ruined one of the most delightful and romantic of the many love stories which had their beginning in the war.

Ye TOWNE GOSSIP

By K. C. B.

DEAR K. C. B.—"Friend Husband and I always enjoy your articles because they are so full of good common sense and humor, and, last but not least—so human.

And because he reads them, will you please write him a special one on "CONSIDERATION"?

He tells his friends what a wonderful wife he has. And yet, when the least little thing goes wrong at the office or elsewhere, he ignores the whole family and refuses to speak to me for a week at a time. I go along as if I were sublimely unconscious of his sphinxlike silence, waiting for him to come out of it. But I feel life is too short to be wasted in such an unhappy way, and when I came across this little piece of poetry the other day I found to my sorrow that it expressed my sentiments exactly:

NEVER AGAIN!

I will sing with you; I will jest with you;
I will dance with you down the year.
Not willingly, my dear.

I will feast with you when the lights flare high,
And the hall is warm with cheer.
Never again, my dear.

For the gold of the heart is given but once—
Yes, once, and but once, I fear.
And a true love stain comes back to reign
Never again, my dear.

K. C. B., I'd rather have married a good-natured, cheerful fool than a brilliant crab.

THAT'S ALL.
THERE ISN'T any more.
SHE DIDN'T sign it.
OR ANYTHING.
AND I'M printing it.
JUST AS it is.
AS A terrible warning.
TO ALL the crabs.
AND A ray of hope.
TO THE cheerful fools.

AND IF he reads it.
I HOPE he'll stop.
AND LOOK a little.
AND LISTEN a lot.
AND REALIZE.
THAT THE sphinx-like silence.
OF A wounded wife.
MAY BE the lull.
BEFORE THE storm.

HELP THE CHILDREN

You say that you will be so glad when your boy or your girl reaches the stage where it will not be necessary for you to watch every little move and word which they use to express themselves.

Do you really think that that time will ever come?

Isn't it your duty to watch carefully that the wrong thing does not creep in unawares?

By getting acquainted with your boy's associates and your girl's friends you do much along the line of understanding what is going on in your child's heart.

Without making it too plain and disagreeable, if you have good sense, you can direct the thought and aims and ambitions of your children, and you ought to be glad to help with your greater experience.

You know of many things you longed for as a child, and now is the time to provide the advantages so that your child cannot suffer in the same way.

Don't become so engrossed in your business or your home cares and duties that you cannot enter into the heart of hearts of your little folk and count it your dearest privilege that you do have to sit down every day and bore in a few fundamentals. It will pay in the end, and who will do it if you do not?
